A TIDAL FLAME.

A Disastrously Ruinous Fire in New York.

Whole Structures Enveloped in Flames—Citizens Slide Down Ropes and Drop Through Hatchways—All Caused by Spontaneous Combustion.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 23.—A most disastrous fire broke out at 1:15 o'clock yesterday afternoon on the sixth floor of the Munro building, Nos. 17 to 27 Vandewater street, and Nos. 41 to 51 Rose street, where the Seaside Library is printed. Within an hour the upper stories on the south side of the structure were enveloped in flames, and when the fire was subdued at nightfall, four upper stories on the Vandewater street side of the building and the upper part of the middle of the building were

A MASS OF RUINS.

The fire was discovered by the residents in the neighborhood, who saw clouds of smoke issuing from the windows on the sixth floor and rising in curls over the roof of the building, which is eight stories high on Vandewater street and nine stories high on Rose street. Owing to the long time it took to gain an entrance, the fire had got under strong headway before the men were able to get to work. The smoke belched forth from the windows in front and on the side of the sixth floor of the building as though it came from an active volcano. It poured out in dense black volumes, obscuring from view the front of the tall and massive structure and filled the street with such a pall that no one could see. The firemen had to grope their way like blind men. It soon became evident that a destructive conflagration was imminent, and second and third alarms were sent out calling numerous engines and trucks to the scene. Several special calls were afterward given. The firemen who had succeeded in obtaining an entrance to the burning structure were repeatedly

DRIVEN BACK BY THE SMOKE.

On reaching the sixth floor they were compelled to beat a hasty retreat on account of the flame and smoke which were pouring from one of the rooms. They rushed from the spot only to find that the hall leading to the main entrance was also in flames. Terror-stricken, they dropped their hose and fled in different directions. Some got out of a window and slid down, or into the open space on the tenement side of the building, while others managed, by getting into rear rooms and dropping through hatchways to lower floors, to escape by the main entrance. It was several minutes before some of them recovered sufficiently to resume work. The fire was under control at about five o'clock. The three upper floors on the Vandewater street side and about half of the building between that street and Rose street were gutted. The fire, it is supposed, was caused

BY SPONTANEOUS COMBUSTION.

The building was the property of George Munro, who is the publisher of the Seaside Library and a number of weekly serial papers.

There are eight floors on Vandewater street and nine on the Rose street side. The ground floor on the Vandewater street side is occupied by the New York Wineck, the New York Screw Top Works, H. McCobb, a confectioner and Charles A. Lieb, machinist. The second floor was occupied by H. Cheroury, printer, and Henry Dawson, who also has part of the sixth floor. E. E. Tomlinson, pamphlet binder, had the third floor; John Madole, book publisher, the fourth floor, the Vulcanite Jewelry Company and Alex. Anderson, printer, the fifth floor; Lovejoy, Sons & Co., electrotypers, the eighth floor. Munro & Co. have the seventh floor and the top floor is used by the Home Publication Company. On the Rose street side the is occupied by Charles E. Johnson & Co., printing inks, and Bingham, Daly & O'Hara, printers' rollers. On the second floor are Stringham & Gombers, label cutters, and E. E. Tomlinson. On the third floor are Handy & Goodwin, printers. Dodd & Gilderslevy, printer and binder, has the fourth floor, and the fifth floor is occupied by Lovejoy, Sons & Co., while Munro & Co. have the sixth and seventh floors. Sackett, Wilhelm & Betzig occupy the eighth floor, and Munro & Co. and the Kendall Bank Note Company are on the upper floor. The total loss is estimated at $500,000.

FIRST FLOOR

A PLEASANT EXCURSION.

The "Long Dock Gang" Capture a Boat and Cause a Riot.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

JERSEY CITY, July 23.—Considerable excitement was caused here late last night by the report that two men had been killed in a riot on an excursion which had left the city yesterday morning. The report was found to be incorrect, but it was ascertained that a series of drunken fights had taken place and several men had been injured more or less seriously. The excursion was given by the Davitt Rifles, who had as guests the Hibernian Rifles of Jersey City, the Montgomery Rifles of New York and an independent rifle company from Elizabethport. The Davitts had chartered the barges Meyers and Geraldine and the steamboat Egbert Myers, and the destination of the excursion was Linden Grove, Staten Island. There was a large crowd on the barges and at the Pavonia ferry, the first starting place, a crowd of ruffians known as the "Long Dock Gang" got on board. It is said, by people who were on the excursion, that there was a succession of fights from the time the boat and barges left the dock, and that bottles and stools and every other available thing were used as weapons. The "Long Dock Gang" was in continual conflict with the rifle company and the large crowd of women and children were greatly frightened. When

A LANDING

was made at Elizabethport many of the pleasure-seekers went ashore and returned by railroad. At the grove the brawls were renewed and some of the riflemen used their bayonets and weapons. The Superintendent of a linoleum factory saw two men whom he supposed to be dead carried on board one of the barges, and he telegraphed to Capt. Blake, of the Brighton police, that a riot was in progress in the grove and that two men had been killed. Capt. Blake telegraphed back that as the grove was six miles from Brighton and he and his men had no means of reaching the place, it would be better to telegraph to the Jersey City police to meet the brawlers upon their return home. This was done and Chief Murphy sent Capt. Farrier and a squad of detectives and police to the Morris street dock to intercept the party. The policemen formed a double line upon the pier and compelled everybody to pass before them. In this manner they arrested all the members of the

LONG DOCK GANG

that they knew and everybody that had any appearance of having been engaged in a fight. The police also searched the barge and boat for the bodies of the two men reported killed, but could find no trace of them. They learned from the captain of the steamer that dead men had been taken on board, and the conclusion was reached that the two whom the superintendent of the linoleum factory supposed to be dead were merely drunk. After they had been taken away by the police some members of the excursion engaged in a fight near Washington Square at Washington and Hudson streets, and it was reported that a man was dangerously injured and that some of his friends had carried him away. Chief Murphy telegraphed to Capt. Blake last night

TO COME TO JERSEY CITY

to-morrow morning if he had any evidence to sustain a charge. If not the prisoners would be delivered to the Staten Island authorities. It was noticed as the riflemen got off the barges that the uniforms of several of them were stained with blood. A rumor was circulated that the bodies of two men who had been killed were taken to the morgue on Staten Island, but the rumor was not authenticated.

Roasted Alive.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 23.—A three-year-old son of John Casy while playing with matches in the attic set fire to his clothing. His screams brought his mother, who, rushing up stairs, was horrified to see her boy roasting alive. In attempting to extinguish the flames she was shockingly burned about the arms and neck. The child was roasted from head to foot. It lingered twelve hours and then died. The mother will probably recover.

GAMBLING AT LONG BRANCH.

High Play Carried on on a Larger Scale than Ever Before.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

LONG BRANCH, July 23.—The old patrons of Long Branch are in many instances astonished at the extent in which gambling is indulged in at the branch. The assertion is made that "fighting the tiger" is carried on on a larger scale now than ever before. The saloons are fitted up with more than regal splendor and every æsthetic taste is appealed to for the purpose of inducing men to indulge in the game. A circumstance happened after midnight Saturday night, or rather early Sunday morning, which may be important to many people in New York. Many of the guests at the West End Hotel were awakened from slumber by what they at first supposed to be a personal encounter of several men near the hotel. It, however, turned out to be an altercation between a young man who had been brought away from the famous gambling saloon of the Branch, and a companion who endeavored to prevent him from returning. The watchman on duty was appealed to for help. The young man finally broke away from them and returned to the club-house. After he had accomplished this

THE FRIEND

who had been trying to save him, in a tone of lamentation asked the watchman what he should do. "There," said he, "is a young man of great promise, who holds an important position of trust in the city of New York. He has been over to the club and lost all the money that he has got, and now, against my appeals, has gone back to borrow more and continue his gambling. The infatuation has taken possession of him and I tremble for him and his position of trust." "What shall I do?" was the closing lamentation of the person who had been trying to rescue the young man. Who the person was who was thus trying in the midnight hours to save his friend or who was the young man who had become so infatuated with the gaming table, was not ascertained. Those who were awakened by the noise and by the explanation are to-day speculating as to whether the person alluded to holds a position is relied upon to protect the funds of the public as was young Carroll, or in some bank or other institution in which their funds are invested. They are also asking each other if there is another coupon fraud in embryo waiting future development to bring it to light, some accidental circumstance to unearth it and astonish the public. The circumstance has created a deep interest here and was the general subject of comment and talk among the prominent guests at the hotel to-day.

WHERE HIS HONESTY

A FREAK OF NATURE.

A Seventeen-Year-Old Boy Who is Singularly Deformed.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NORWALK, CONN., July 23.—In a small one-story frame dwelling situated opposite the freight depot of the Danbury and Norwalk railroad here, a correspondent recently discovered a curious example of human deformity, whose existence has been preserved a secret for nearly seventeen years. At the house mentioned Thomas Hardon, a railway laborer, and his wife live with their son, Tom. This boy was born seventeen years ago, a misshapen mite of humanity. By the advice of their parish priest the sorrowing parents have carefully concealed him from the public gaze. When a reporter called at the house to-day the unfortunate boy was found half-sitting and half-reclining in an invalid's easy chair. He is totally devoid of shoulders, and from the center of his back two arms, with well-formed hands, grow from a single limb. The hands and arms are devoid of the power of feeling and are also affected with a strange continual motion, sweeping around in a circle like a windmill, the arms being stretched out at full length and moving in opposite directions. This motion never ceases except when the arms are tied together, and are covered with scars from contact with the walls, tables, chairs, etc. His body is further deformed by the joining of the legs as far as the knee. Here the right leg has turned back and upward until the heel strikes the center of the back, where it is firmly imbedded in the flesh. He is mentally bright and conversed freely and intelligently with the reporter about the few books his parents had been able to procure him and about articles he had read in the newspapers, which are occasionally supplied him. Said his mother: "He is a great care to us, being unable to help himself at all. But he is just as dear to me as if he was like other children. I suppose he could be exhibited, but as long as his father or myself have life in our bodies to work for him he never shall be."

DARING BURGLARS.

A Man Robbed at His Own Door at Midnight.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

TROY, N. Y., July 23.—About 2 o'clock this morning George W. Latham, proprietor of the hotel at Latham's Corners, about three miles west of West Troy, on the Shaker road, was awakened by Mr. Ireland, a neighbor, who had been to the city, where he had made some purchases for Mr. Latham. Mr. Ireland delivered the packages, and while engaged in conversation with Mr. Latham, who is an octogenarian of inferior mind, a vehicle with three men passed by them. Mr. Ireland drove home. The horse in the other wagon was then turned around and it drew up in front of the hotel and the men, who were masked, alighted. They approached Mr. Latham and suddenly sprang upon him, and while two of them held him, the other rifled his pockets of a few dollars. The old man resisted and was brutally beaten. Mr. Latham was of one of the men while the others started to rob the house. The noise of the scuffle aroused the inmates, and James Latham reached the foot of the stairs in time to see a man running from the bar-room with the cash-box in his hands. He attempted to grab him, when he suddenly turned and shot him in the right breast, inflicting a dangerous wound. The pistol was held so close that Mr. Latham's clothing was burned. The thieves escaped. An investigation disclosed that the burglars stole the horse and wagon in which they rode to the scene.

A MINNESOTA CYCLONE.

Terrible Ravages by a Storm in the Southern Part of the State.

ST. PAUL, MINN., July 23.—A storm swept through Southern Minnesota and traveled as far as Huron, Dak., at noon yesterday. It was most furious at Mantonville, Wasioja, Elgin and Owatonna in this State. At Mantonville a number of dwellings and business houses were demolished and several people were killed and many others seriously wounded. The village of Elgin was almost completely wiped out. The loss of life was greater than at Mantonville, and the damage to property very great. At Owatonna all the buildings in the State Fair Grounds, which were being fitted up for the approaching exhibition, were completely destroyed. The Methodist Church, the largest in the town, was badly damaged. Several persons were more or less injured, but none fatalities are heid annually. A very entertaining fatally. THE ULTRAMONTANE LEADER.

Celebration of the Anniversary of the Oldest Bishop on the Continent.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

MONTREAL, July 23.—Great preparations are making here to celebrate the forty-sixth anniversary of Archbishop Bourget's consecration to the see of Montreal. There are only two prelates older than his Grace in the whole of Christendom. He is the senior holder of the miter on this continent. He was the first Bishop of Montreal, the second appointed by Popes in Canada, the great De Lavalle of Quebec, the founder of the university there, being the first. The aged Archbishop, who is still strong at ninety, has always been the recognized leader of Ultramontanism on this continent, and has fought its battle strenuously.

FINE CROP PROSPECTS.

Osborne County, Kansas—Large Yields of Wheat.

Fine Prospects for Corn—Growth of the Stock Interest—Osborne, the County Seat—Grand Anniversary Celebration at Downs—Bull City's Trade.

Special Correspondence of the Post-Dispatch.

OSBORNE, KAS., July 21.—There can be no longer any surprise that many farmers in the east are selling out their high-priced farms where many of them merely eke out an existence, getting ofttimes but poor returns for a large amount of labor upon a farm where the initiatory steps are to grub out timber or underbrush or to plow amid the stones, seeking for some productive soil, and leave in search of a suitable place in Kansas or other Western States, after one has been west, watched the signs of the times, seen the growing crops, priced the beautiful valley land and conversed with farmers who, many of them, coming west a few years ago with nothing perhaps but a team and a small amount of money, are now in comfortable circumstances, own a good-sized farm, and are essentially out of debt.

That this is really the case our trip to Osborne county and the Solomon Valley fully demonstrates. In conversing with farmers we learn that there is but little dissatisfaction; that there is much greater proportionate interest taken in stock; that corn raised here is universally put into pork to market, and that by this means the farmer realizes from 40 to 60 cents per bushel for it. As a reflex of the well doing of the farmers in Osborne County, one lumber firm has sold this season twenty-four complete house bills, some of them ranging from $2,000 to $3,000 and all for the country. A banker informs us that it is nearly impossible to loan money, and of $40,000 loaned during the last year not a single man defaulted on interest.

What is the secret of this success? Perseverance, industry and careful farming where as one farmer told us his last year's crop exceeded the estimated value of his farm.

Much good land can yet be secured in this county for farming purposes in various ways. First, the homesteader who for some reason, perhaps his own lack of skill or industry, is willing to sell out his claim. Second, the 20,000 acres of unsold school lands, upon which the terms are twenty years' time at six per cent. Third, some 20,000 acres of railroad land still to be obtained upon favorable terms, and last, over 18,000 acres of vacant Government land still open for entry by homestead, pre-emption or timber culture act. This land is the poorest the country has and is mainly valuable for stock range. All except the Government land is rich, productive and well-watered tracts.

The prices of lands are from $3 to $10 per acre and good farms range from $5 to $20. The land is easy to till and cultivate and breaking is done with one team at from $1 50 to $2 per acre. We saw some good hedge fences and immense quantities of land fenced with barbed wire, principally for pasturage.

Osborne county is a little west of the center in but not far enough west to be compelled to irrigate to produce crops, and with usually sufficient rainfall during the growing season. Its altitude is nearly 2,000 feet, and its healthfulness marked. It contains 900 square miles, or 576,000 acres, consisting of valley and rolling prairie, with some level upland. The soil is alluvium in the valleys and magnesium limestone on the uplands. It is very rich and fertile, quite deep and apparently inexhaustible. Land which has been cultivated to wheat and corn for ten years is still in good condition. Subsoil is partly alluvium, principally drift, which is very fertile when turned to the surface. The substrata is largely limestone of the Niobrara formation, with good deposits of the Benton formation about Downs. Building stone is cut from both, and is convenient in every neighborhood in the county. It costs only the expense of quarrying and dressing, and furnishes a cheap, permanent and handsome building material. It is easily cut and dressed, and hardens by exposure. There are indications of coal, but no developments as yet.

Osborne County is watered by the north and south forks of the Solomon River and a network of tributaries flowing into them. A great many springs abound, but water for general use is obtained from wells 15 to 50 feet deep. Both forks furnish water power for several miles, and there are some very fine unimproved mill sites still vacant.

There is only a light growth of timber—about 2 per cent all skirting the streams. About 20 per cent of the area is valley land. Winter wheat is unquestionably the great staple of the country, there being 39,014 acres cultivated this season, an increase of nearly 13,000 acres in one year. The crop is all in, and will average higher than last year, which was twenty bushels to the acre. The average in rye has more than doubled, being 16,754, and a sure crop. Oats have doubled, 5,883 acres being put in this year, and a splendid yield. Sorghum has increased. Spring wheat has declined. Broomcorn has lost heavily—look on account of the yield, for that is splendid, but of low prices ruling last season. Corn has lost heavily, and still no place on the line of the Central Branch has brighter corn prospects at this writing than the Solomon Valley. There should be a large increase in the hog interest, so that the corn could be put on the "porker" to ship to market, subluating and reducing five ears of corn to one car of hogs. Castor beans are successfully raised, and there is an immense crop of Irish potatoes and other vegetables.

The county is credited with 9,608 population, mostly from the Northwestern States, Iowa leading, though it probably exceeds that by one or two thousand. There are 100 school districts where schools are taught, and great interest is taken in education. The county debt is $35,474 80, which is expected to be funded at 5 per cent. Taxable property, $1,272,547 47 from statement of County Treasurer. Two hundred and fifty thousand dollars of this is railroad property.

Blue stem and buffalo grass are indigenous and furnish excellent pasturage. Prairie hay is abundant. Millet is successfully raised. Peaches, plums and apples thrive and small fruits do nicely. Our attention was called to the prolific growth of the mulberry, which suggests silkworm culture as a future source of great profit.

There is a general improvement in stock, especially in blooded horses, Norman; pigs, Berkshire and Poland China; and sheep, Cotswold and Merino. Over 10,000 sheep have been added to the county since 1882. There is at least 30 per cent profit in raising stock for market and it is reasonably safe.

OSBORNE, THE COUNTY SEAT, is fourteen miles from Downs, upon the South Solomon section of the Missouri Pacific Railway (formerly C. B. U. P.) It is nicely located, with substantial architecture, several stone business-houses, wide streets, good sidewalks, some very pretty groves and a few young shade trees. It was settled in 1871 by a colony from Pennsylvania, and a number of these farmers still live near. The people are orderly, business-like and industrious. There are three church buildings, including the only Moravian church in Kansas, a handsome stone building, costing $4,000; the others are Presbyterian and Congregationalist. Three other societies, Methodist Episcopal, Free Methodist and Baptist, are preparing to build. There are four Sunday-schools. A good school edifice, with four instructors, has an enrollment of over 200. Successful Normal institutes are held annually. A very entertaining is a town of 232 from Atchison. It has about 250 population, is on the South fork of the Solomon River, and draws a large trade from an indefinite distance south and west as the nearest railroad point. It was located twelve years since, and named in honor of General Bull, who was killed by an elk in his park some time ago. But its development dates with the completion of the railway, two and one-half years ago. There are yet numerous opportunities for the utilization of water-power, and now two mills are doing a good business near the city. There are five or six religious organizations, and a neat and tasty M. E. building. The school facilities are very poor, but we understand a new school-house is to be built this fall. There are three elevators and a new one to be erected, two hotels, a variety of stores, a trade exceeding $200,000, various mystic orders, the Western Empire, a good paper for any one, and there is good chances for an amber cane-mill and refinery, and an excellent opening for a creamery.

DOWNS

Bull City is the heaviest broom-corn center in the State, $200,000 worth being shipped last year, wheat $150,000 and other grain and stock about the same. It is a prosperous little city.

Y., incurred the enmity of a large portion of his flock. The troubles culminated on Sunday night in a row in front of the church between the police and 1,000 Poles. Two officers were struck with stones and slightly hurt.

A twelve-year-old girl named McDonald was found dead in the woods near Collins, Tex., on Sunday. She had been lost four days and five nights. Her mother was in Laredo with a little son who was bitten by a rattlesnake. During the last twelve months this lady lost a son-in-law, killed by a railroad accident, her husband died from a blow on the head, and her son blew his brains out in her presence.

THE WIRE-WORKERS.

The Telegraph Operators Still Firm and Reliant.

Western Union Officials Confident They Have Weathered the Storm—The New York Strikers Holding Their Own—Situation in Other Cities.

The stereotyped expression to be applied to the strike to-day and henceforward in all probability until the contending forces come together with a view to friendly settlement, is the old-time favorite journalistic phrase: "The situation remains practically unchanged." This neat and ready combination of words which applies with equal felicity to the serious disagreement of natural governments, to the condition of flooded countries, to the dissensions among local politicians, and all other major and minor phenomena and social events, so aptly describes the condition of affairs in the respective camps of the company and the strikers this morning that its use is unavoidable. The strikers are, as they have been ever since they quit work, firmly reliant upon their ability to force the company to their terms, and the company's repsesentatives here, as elsewhere, insist that they are rapidly filling up the vacancies caused by the strike and are every day getting better service from the operators who have been placed at the deserted desks.

"The rust is rubbing off these old operators very quickly," Superintendent Baker remarked this morning to a POST-DISPATCH reporter who called upon him. "Some of them have not done work for years, and when they resumed they were naturally a little awkward, but you'd be astonished to see the work that many of them are doing. Of course some of them are no good and are not retained, but the large majority have done splendidly and will soon be doing as good work as was done by their predecessors."

"How big a force have you on hand now?"

"We have seventy-two good operators in the office up-stairs, and they are getting away with the business in nearly as good shape as it was ever done—a little slow, perhaps, but none the less effective. We have no complaints, we are refusing no business, and that of itself tells the story."

"How are you getting along down South?"

"First rate. The offices all through the South are filling up rapidly. Galveston has a full force, and other points in that vicinity are fast filling up. Two days ago I told you the company would be in as good shape as ever in ten days. I can improve on that now: in three or four days the service rendered by our reorganized forces will be perfectly satisfactory to the company and its patrons."

"Are you still sending operators who apply for work to other places?"

"Yes, when a really first-class man applies, we send him to a point where his services may be required, but we are not at all anxious in search of men."

"You got through yesterday's work in good shape?"

"Yes; but then, of course, that was no criterion. The work on Sunday is so light hat only a fifth of the force is on hand. Comparatively few messages are sent and the press runs light. To-day, however, a good average business is being done, and the operators on hand are handling it in a very satisfactory manner."

MR. E. H. BROWN,

the local manager, was as usual elated over the situation. He felt more than ever before that the long-sightedness which had enabled him for months to keep himself posted on the doings of the brotherhood had been rewarded.

"We are handling our business better than ever," he said. "Our force is full in numbers and well up to the standard in the matter of expertness. The trouble is over as far as we are concerned."

"The strikers claim that you cannot possibly get along without them."

"They know better. They cannot help knowing that they are beaten, and that we are doing the company's work in good shape and shall continue to do so. Over on the Merchants' Exchange to-day we are giving perfect satisfaction, while the general business is being carried on as well as ever."

"The strikers say that they can hold out for six months longer."

"They will stay out a good deal longer than that. They won't get back at all. We will stand by the operators who stand by us through thick and thin. If the strikers come back they will have to take what's left after the loyal employes are provided for."

"There was considerable feeling on the part of the strikers to-day because they were excluded from the floor of the Exchange."

"Was there? Well, now, I don't see what they have to complain about. We send men up there to work and not to be laughed and sneered at and insulted. How would you like to be working quietly at your desk and have lumps of paper and other missiles come at you, and then have a fellow come up to you and say, "You're a stinker," and apply other complimentary remarks to you. That is just what our operators had to stand up there, and as we send them up there to do business and as business cannot be done under such conditions, a note was sent to Mr. Ewald, President of the Exchange, acquainting him of what was going on. If he excluded the strikers from the floor on this representation, he acted, in my opinion, with wisdom."

THE CONDITION OF AFFAIRS ON 'CHANGE

was very much improved this morning. The Board of Trade Telegraph Company had three wires in good working order between here and Chicago, and messages were flying between the two cities with their usual rapidity. At the Western Union office a force of six operators, four of them first-class, one of them fair and the other very poor, were supplying a very satisfactory service, and the members of the Exchange were very willing to acknowledge the ameliorated condition of affairs.

"It's a great deal better to-day," President Ewald remarked to the reporter. "The Western Union has a very satisfactory force of operators at work, and in many respects the situation of last Saturday is greatly improved upon. The blackboards are being supplied pretty regularly with quotations, and if we could only get regular communication with the interior and with Toledo we would be getting along nicely. Until we have this, however, we shall have the right to complain and shall not refrain from the luxury."

"I see that you have excluded the striking telegraphers from the floor this morning?"

"Yes. There were complaints made Saturday that private policemen had been admitted to the floor, whose object was to watch the strikers, and this morning I came to the conclusion that the best way to be prepared for trouble is to prevent it, so it was decided not to admit the strikers. Anyhow, it's a very hot day, and the fewer outsiders in the room the more comfortable it will be for the members."

Among the visitors to the Exchange this morning was a member of the Chicago Board of Trade. Speaking of the strike he said that business on the Chicago board has been seriously embarrassed by the great difficulty in securing telegraph service. The Chicago board has only a few telegraph operators, and they are of no earthly good. The merchants place no dependence upon them. Saturday, July 21, he received thirty-seven telegrams from different points, all of which were dated the 19th. Other parties had had the same experience. The Chicago merchants were heartily in sympathy with the strikers, and it has been proposed to raise $50,000 on the board to help the boys out. There was talk, also, of holding an indignation meeting by the merchants to protest against the telegraph service now being given them, and also to express their sympathy with the striking telegraphers. If the workings of the Western Union do not improve very shortly, this meeting will undoubtedly be held. By way of exemplifying that the service rendered at the St. Louis Exchange was hardly as good as it ought to be, he stated that a few minutes before 11 he received from Chicago a private telegram, showing the price of wheat there to be 5⅛ cents, while the quotation placed upon the blackboard at the same time was 4⅝ cents, a difference of half a cent. With such discrepancies as these existing trading with confidence is an impossibility. Still the members of the Exchange were willing to acknowledge that an improvement had been effected, and, if it is an earnest of still better service to come, the angry feelings which were aroused on Saturday will be allowed to slumber.

THE STRIKERS,

debarred of the privilege of the floor, hovered around in the vicinity of the Exchange building. One of them, who probably felt a little wrathy over his exclusion, was very decided in his prophetic utterances predicting trouble in the future if the Western Union does not soon come to terms with the strikers.

"If they don't meet us half way in a week," he said, "there won't be a railroad running in the country at the end of that time. This is business with us. We haven't entered upon this strike in a sudden burst of enthusiasm; on the contrary, we have entered upon it in cold blood, and we are going to stay until we win."

"How are you going to stop the railroads from running?"

"We'll cut the lines. This is not bluff. It's what we intend to do if the Western Union push-[illegible] We'll stop the railroads from running, and then, I guess, something will have to be done."

Other members of the Brotherhood were either less communicative or less communistic. They had nothing to say on the subject of wire-cutting or of putting an end to railroad travel, but they were none the less enthusiastic on the question of forcing a recognition of their rights by the peaceful means of staying away from work.

MR. MORTIMER SHAW,

one of the Executive Committee of the Brotherhood, was too busy to talk himself, so he turned the reporter over to a local magnate of the body who said that the strikers were more than ever confident that they would be successful in their present undertaking. He had a very good idea of what the present working force of the Western Union consisted, and he had confidence in saying that around a very small nucleus of really good operators had been gathered a number of veterans of the key who had outlived their usefulness, and of tyros from the schools who were even more worthless. The company was paying these the same wages they paid to a first-class operator, and this was a thing which they could not afford to do. The reason why they were doing the work set them was that the public was not doing as much telegraphing as usual by at least fifty per cent. To do this work the company was paying as heavy salaries as when they had first-class operators in their employ. "If they can keep on doing this, all right," the striker said, and then added, "but they can't."

"How is the excursion getting along?"

"We are going to clear $1,000 by it. One man this morning took fifty tickets and others are responding nobly. If we could only get on 'Change to sell them we'd make a great deal more. The real reason why the Western Union people wanted us kept off 'Change was to prevent us from selling excursion tickets."

"Then on the whole you are satisfied with the present condition of affairs?"

"Yes, but we think the press is giving us a rough deal the whole country over."

"But nobody is ever satisfied with what the press does for them."

"I know that; but the papers keep stating that we are already beaten, and that helps to create sympathy for the companies and prejudice against us. All we want is a square deal from the papers as from everybody else. At our meeting this afternoon we are going to appoint a press committee, which will be charged with the duty of preparing daily official statements of such of the doings of the Brotherhood as we desire published, and we shall expect the paper to publish it. They publish all the matter which is prepared on the other side and we think they ought to give us an equal show."

Another meeting of the Brotherhood was held at Lightstone's Hall this afternoon.

Holding Their Own.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The Herald says: "The striking telegraphers and the Western Union company seem as far from an agreement as ever, and whatever relief the company experienced yesterday was probably due to the customary Sunday cessation of commercial activity. It was reported yesterday afternoon that the Baltimore and Ohio company and the Rapid Telegraph company had demands, and were employing additional help, so wherever their lines run there should not be as much delay as there was during the latter portion of last week. The Western Union company appear to be confident of ultimate triumph, and so do the strikers, but the public is growing impatient at the delay and annoyance to which it is subjected by the lack of agreement between the contending parties. For the public's sake either side could honorably listen to propositions looking towards a compromise. It was said last night upon what is believed to be excellent authority, that a grand coup was in preparation by the striking telegraphers, which, if successfully accomplished, would certainly inflict a serious blow upon the Western Union company. The plan, as it was outlined by a gentleman well known in telegraph circles, was simply this: A combination was to be formed between the American Rapid Telegraph company, the Baltimore and Ohio Telegraph company, and the Brotherhood of Telegraphers with the object of transferring much of the business heretofore controlled by the Western Union Company to its two younger rivals, and thus the strikers' great adversary. The present strike, as is well known, is directly against the Western Union Company. The other two companies, while they have not paid their employes as much as is called for by the bill of grievances on which the strike is based, have been more liberal than the Western Union. The sentiment of the Brotherhood toward them, therefore, was from the first disposed to be more kindly than toward the monopoly company. The operators in the office of the Baltimore and Ohio and the American Rapid went out with the Western Union men, however, and the work of the two companies, like that of the third, has almost come to a standstill. Mr. Garrett, of the Baltimore and Ohio, has been very quietly in New York for three days and has held several consultations with J. H. May, the vice-president and manager of the American Rapid Company. Mr. Shaw, of the Brotherhood Executive Committee, the leader of the strike, has also been at these councils, and it is said that the result of the deliberation has been that the Baltimore and Ohio and the American Rapid are to

ACCEDED TO THE STRIKERS'

CRIPPLING STILL FURTHER

YIELD EVERY CONCESSION

asked by the brotherhood, who, in turn, will put the best operators in the country at the service of these two companies, and assist them in every way to break down the Western Union. At a meeting on Saturday afternoon between Mr. Walter P. Phillips, representing the American Rapid, and Mr. J. B. Houston, for the Baltimore and Ohio, the details of the plan are said to have been arranged. The hopes of the parties to the agreement are said to be based on the fact that, while the wires of the two companies do not cover the extent of territory which the Western Union does, they take in the very heart of the country and reach all the points at which telegraphing is profitable. This combination, it is claimed, would be a powerful blow to the Western Union, and being able to do rapid service on new lines with all the newest and most improved appliances, would soon obtain a very profitable patronage at the expense of the Western Union. Neither Mr. May nor Mr. Garrett could be found last evening, and Mr. Campbell declined

TO BE INTERVIEWED

on the subject at present. Mr. Francis X. Schoonmaker, the New York agent of the Press Association, at No. 187 Broadway, admitted, after some hesitation, that he had heard of the combination mentioned above, and from circumstances within his own knowledge, was inclined to believe the story true. At the Western Union Telegraph Company a messenger declared that the officials had refused to see the representatives of the press because they went away and printed stories damaging to the company. Vice-President Van Horn sent word that he was engaged, and so did Superintendent Humston, Assistant Merrihew and several others. When Mr Merrihew came forward he said that there were the usual Sunday night force. They had had more men than they wanted during the day and were getting on better than they had expected, and handling the work satisfactorily. The Sunday business was very much less than during the week, "sixty per cent less," one official explained, and the company have been able to send home for needed rest the men who had been overworked during the rush of the preceding three days.

FIFTY OPERATORS AT WORK,

The excursion to Long Branch on board the Plymouth was the feature of the day. The hour for starting was nine o'clock, but an hour earlier well-dressed men began to arrive, and long before the boat touched the wharf at the foot of Twenty-first street and North river, the dock was crowded. It was a quarter past nine o'clock when the boat left the pier and started down the river to pier six, where another crowd got aboard and swelled the number to 900. Chairman John Mitchell was made master of ceremonies, though he had been up all the previous night. When the rolling of the boat forbade more dancing, the excursionists indulged in singing and piano playing. About twelve o'clock the Iron pier was reached, and, though many of the men came ashore and waited for the last boat up at night, the ladies and their escorts, numbering 500, remained aboard the steamer and returned on her quarter past twelve trip. On the return trip the piano playing was resumed and a new attraction of singing by the Western Union Glee Club was offered. The steamer reached Twenty-third street on the return trip at 3:30 o'clock and the party disembarked and marched to Irving Hall, where a meeting was held. The meeting was called to order by Mr. John Mitchell, who said he was "happy to note that the members of the Brotherhood had not broken their pledge to abstain from liquor. There was not one aboard the boat who touched beer or liquor the whole day. I think that will prove another peg in the switchboard of public opinion," he said. "The excursion was a success, and I congratulate you all." He then read the following dispatch from Philadelphia:

WITH PRETTY GIRLS

IN THE SHAPE

"We stand as firm as Jay Gould's safes. Keep

THE LINE UNBROKEN.

We are initiating from ten to forty-five a day.

"HARTMAN, Chairman."

Mitchell then said: "Brothers, I believe Providence is with us. I have just heard that the Munroe building in Vandewater street is on fire. Over its roof there are 480 wires, all of which will be cut, but not by the linemen. [Cheers]. On it are 300 single lines and three cables, each containing sixty wires. I am sorry for the owner of the building, but, as I said, providence seems with us." The proceedings were interrupted at this point by a boy entering the hall with a pail of pond lillies, covered with the accompanying card bearing the words, "To the lady operators, from Eugene W. Drew." Mr. Drew was called to the platform, where he addressed the meeting and said he was

"WITH 'EM."

Then Miss Maggie E. Swan was called on the platform. She is the worthy First Preceptress of the Sisterhood, and accepted the lilies for the ladies. Miss Swan is a beautiful brunette, and was dressed entirely in white. It was announced that a match game of ball between nines of the operators and linemen will take place on the polo grounds next Wednesday. Inquiry at the office of the Western Union failed to reveal any new state of affairs there. The check girls said that the men that could operate were tired out and that the "students," "plugs" and "dummies" could not work the wires. Assistant Superintendent Merrihew said that Sunday was not usually a very busy day. "We have our usual Sunday force on hand," he said, "and the work has been going on as well as we could wish. We have about fifty men on duty, more than enough to handle the work. The men have not been overworked, and many who labored throughout the week have taken Sunday as a holiday."

At New York.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The force of operators which reported for duty at the Western Union this morning numbered about 200. It was said that none of those who were at work last week were missing from their posts. There was business left over last night, and this morning all wires were clear, and there was no delay in handling all matters. One of the officials said the outlook was becoming more encouraging every day. He said: "The force at our command is now more advantageously distributed than at any time since the beginning of the strike and everything is working much more smoothly than could have been expected under the circumstances. Under this arrangement of our forces we hope to avoid in the future all those delays which necessarily resulted from the demoralization attending the strike last week. The number of applicants for situations is increasing each day and before the end of the week we hope to have most of the empty desks filled. It certainly does not seem as though we were much hampered when we are able to send and receive messages to and from all points in the South and West. The statement that our business in the Gulf States is completely blocked, is without foundation. This morning every wire is working clear, and we are getting along about as well as before the strike."

The rumor the boys and girls employed as check-clerks would join the strike this morning is not confirmed, by the fact that all were at work as usual.

At Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 23.—The manager of the Western Union office here says that the situation to-day is not materially changed. Business is being worked off as usual and the force is sufficient to satisfy all demands.

BLOOMINGTON, July 23.—Samuel Rhodes and Richard Houghton, prominent citizens of this city, startled church-goers on their way to worship yesterday morning by engaging in a desperate shooting affray. They have been on unfriendly terms for some time, and when they met at ten o'clock yesterday morning Rhodes assaulted Houghton with a tirade of vulgar remarks. Houghton said that he did not wish to engage in a street rencounter. Rhodes then threw a stone at Houghton, who drew a revolver and fired three times at his assailant, the second shot hitting him in the groin and inflicting what is believed to be a fatal wound.

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., July 23.—Thomas Rees, one of the proprietors of the State Register, and H. W. Rokker, State Printer, had a fight in front of the Register office, in settlement of an old dispute, growing out of the opposition of the newspaper to a bill before the last Legislature in which Rokker was interested. Each party claims to have beaten the other, but neither one shows sign of punishment. Sexton Cleary, of the Church of the Immaculate Conception, was assaulted by thugs at the church and left for dead. He will hardly recover. Willie Parker and Fred Striffler were drowned while bathing in the Sangamon River. Stanley Bradley, eleven years old, died of lockjaw. July 2 he ran a splinter into his hand. The wound healed over a portion of the splinter and tetanus set in and caused the lad's death.

PHOTOS OF BEAUTIES.

Photographers Preparing for the Milwaukee Convention.

Sun Pictures for the Fair—St. Louis Photographers and Their Work—Specimens of Their Skill which Adorn Their Studios—Belles Thro' the Camera—Ministers and Solid Muldoons.

It is said that one of our leading photographers is preparing the pictures of fifteen St. Louis beauties for the approaching Fair. It is pleasant to know that there are so many beauties in the city, and one is well nigh convinced of the fact in looking over the pictures on exhibition in his establishment. He is preparing some very fine photographs for the annual convention which meets in Milwaukee, August 8. Among them a half life-size bust of Mrs. T. J. Conroy, who makes a very handsome photograph; also a life-size bust of Mrs. F. W. Paramore, with white draperies and large white hat. It makes a beautiful picture, from which she is having her portrait painted by Tenseheld. There is also a life-size bust of Mrs. Douglas Cook, which makes a very handsome picture. One of the best in his collection is that of Mr. Waters, a point crayon life-size, a very difficult and finely executed piece of work. The likeness is admirable. Among the most beautiful of those pictures on exhibition is that of Mrs. J. W. McIntyre, in her bridal robes of white brocaded velvet and lace, with clusters of flowers, all faithfully reproduced in the picture. It is a "Tadema," much broader than it is long, and looks like a fine steel engraving.

IT IS A BOUDOIR SCENE.

She is seated in a large chair, her head turned a little to one side, one hand clasping the back of the chair upon which she reclines. At the left stands an easel, upon which a picture is placed, and a table, upon which stands a vase of flowers, is at the other side.

Mrs. Frank P. Plair, in her bridal robes of filmy muslin and lace with a cluster of lilies of the valley at her waist, makes also a beautiful picture; it is a full-length cabinet photograph. Miss Rachel Fraley has a full-length photograph taken in her graduating dress, and surrounded by flowers in every design. In this picture every detail of the dress is perfect, the pattern of the lace, and even the embroidery in the silken hose. Of Miss Ella Parker there is a very sweet picture in the window, the face shaded by a large hat, looking out from a tangle of fern leaves. There is also a very unique and beautiful picture of her as the "Snow Maiden," taken in the costume in which she appeared in the "Winter Garden," clad in her snowy robes fringed with icicles, her hair unbound, and crowned with glittering gems, a spear in her hand. She is seated upon a polar bear, which stands upon a floating iceberg, the snow falling thickly. The picture is twenty by twenty-four inches, and is really a very handsome piece of work. As a companion-piece, Capt. Trusten P. Dyer is pictured as Boreas, in his garments of silver, bordered with ermine, and blowing a silver trumpet, "like unto the Angel Gabriel." Capt. Dyer is a very handsome man, and cannot fail to make a handsome picture. There is also a lovely picture of Miss Minnie Lawrence, as the "Old-fashioned Girl." in loose white slip, with 'kerchief folded across her bosom, a large white hat, tied under the chin: a parasol in one hand and a bunch of flowers in the other, which daintily lifts the dress a little at one side, exposing the toe of her slipper.

Miss Lily McLellan has a fine life-size crayon half-length portrait

Not the least interesting in this display of beauties is the picture of Mrs. Bush,

MISS BLANCHE MELBOURNE,

a small cabinet picture, but large enough to show that she must be a remarkably beautiful woman. It is only a bust; the head, well poised upon the graceful shoulders, is crowned with a tangle of soft blonde hair, parted a little on one side; the eyes are beautiful and large, and have a steady, straightforward look, which would easily inspire confidence in a lover. Another very interesting picture in this collection is a life-size crayon of the actress, who is creating a sensation now abroad. It is a very beautiful piece of work and she is certainly a very handsome woman, with dark hair and eyes, and a bit of lace thrown over her head. A very handsome picture in this collection is that of Mrs. Eugene Cuendet, who died suddenly a short time since in the bloom of her youth and beauty. No one can fail to remember her magnificent appearance as Martha Washington in the International Tea Party, two years ago. This picture is a faithful likeness of her at that time. The same photographer is just completing a full length picture in pastel of Gertrude White. She is standing in a swing, morning glories and roses blooming around her, and a bunch of roses broken from the stem lying at her feet.

MISS LILLIAN RUSSELL,

Little Pagie Beck makes an exquisite picture as she sits upon a large stone beside the river bank, made with a lace scarf thrown over her, and holding a large begonia leaf over her to serve as a parasol to screen her from the sun.

Churchill Jones, Dr. Berkley's little grandson, is a handsome little fellow with a large hat, from beneath which his hair is blown about.

Mabel Filley, in her large hat, beneath which she has her "kitty" hugged close to her cheek, presents a perfect and charming a picture.

Little Louise Filley is very cunning in a Grace Greenaway gown, with kerchief folded over her breast, and high frilled cap, as she sits demurely upon the old stone wall.

THERE ARE TWO TADEMAS

in this collection of children's pictures, as beautiful as steel engravings and deserving especial mention. One is copied from Paul and Virginia portraits of of little Eddie and Mimy Behr of Kirkwood; they stand in the midst of twigs of the trees broken in the storm, clinging close to each other, beneath a broad banana leaf, which they hold above their heads as a shelter from the rain. The other is little John Mayger Guerin, a sturdy little fellow who has planted himself upon a country stile, one bare leg thrown over listlessly, as though he intended to remain there; on the opposite side stands "Topsy" in her sunbonnet, with arms planted upon the fence, her chin dropped in her supporting hands, with an expression of content upon her dusky countenance.

In the windows of an Olive street photographer there are two pictures which every one must have noticed in passing, both pastels. That of

is a perfect picture of the serene old age of one who has not outlived her days of usefulness. The picture is well executed. The mild blue eyes have lost none of their expression, and the soft puffs of gray hair are the same as her friends have always seen about her brow. On the opposite side is a laughing, happy child, in cap and gown, its head dropped in its chubby hands, which rest upon the pillow, the whole face speaking "a merry good morrow." Here is also a full length picture of Miss Dixie Shaw, in pastel, the perfect figure outlined in a princess dress of lace, cut square at the throat, the arms left bare; with hair in soft rings about the face, and coiffure high. It is indeed a fine picture to look upon. Near by hangs the portrait of another well-known beauty,

MRS. FRED EWING, NEE VALLE, almost full length. She wears some kind of masquerade costume of pearl-tinted silk with network of pearls and fringes as trimming, the throat exposed, and wound about it strings of pearls; the high coiffure bound with a fillet of pearls. On an easel is a pastel of a little blue fairy, Mrs. Ben Walker's child. A blue hat rests lightly upon the bright blonde hair, which shades the blue eyes; blue draperies fall around its shoulders. In the window is a full length photograph of taken in her bridal robes some years ago, an exquisite picture. The profile is turned, showing her clear cut features to the best advantage. Her long-trained bridal robe is richly trimmed with lace, confined by cordons of orange blossoms, narcissi and lilies; cluster pearls encircle her throat. The reproduction of the lace and flowers is perfect in the minutest detail. Here is also an exquisite picture in crayon, life size; a youthful face, shaded by soft dark hair, surmounted by high frilled peasant cap, very soft in outline; around the shoulders is loosely tied a thin muslin scarf. It looks like the engravings of half a century ago

At another studio on the same street there are quite a number of interesting pictures, among them life-size crayons of Dr. and Mrs. Goodell, which have been purchased by the congregation to hang in the church parlors. They are collecting, besides, a of this city; both pictures will be 14x17. The photographer is also preparing a group of the Supreme Council of the Legion of Honor, and has a fine photograph of Collector Whitney.

There are excellent life-size crayons of Rev. John Snyder and ex-Senator Rogers. A very fine pastel of Charles Pope and life-size crayon of John W. Norton, also one of Mrs. Freeborn and a large photograph 18x22 of Mrs. Cunningham, daughter of Madame Subit. There is a very pretty bust of Miss Lulu Gibson, and a full length photograph of Mrs. W. L. G. B. Allen in white trained silk covered with lace flounces; coiffure high, confined by bands. He has also a very fine photograph of W. B. Smith in his character of Louis XI. in which he was so successful last winter in a performance of the McCullough Dramatic Club, also one of Gus Thomas and W. G. Smyth as "Our Bachelors."

ONE OF THE PRETTIEST PICTURES

in this collection is a life size bust of Miss Julia Gardiner; the corsage is square cut, with high collar covered with lace, displaying a pretty throat; the face is three quarter, and very clear in outline, large dark eyes, and hair neglige over the forehead. There are also on exhibiton life size crayons of F. H. Thomas, Supreme Chancellor of the Legion of Honor, and F. F. Hilder president of the Century Club. One very cunning picture is that of a little son of Mr. Tucker, statuary size; the little fellow, nude, is seated astride a large white swan, and pursued by a dragon fly.

A Franklin avenue photographer has a number of fine photographs which he is to take to

THE PHOTOGRAPHIC CONVENTION AT MILWAUKEE

August 7th. The subjects are set in flat frames of crimson morocco, with gold border. Among these are life-sized portraits of Messrs. J. C. Somerville, Jos. Martin and Mrs. E. B. White, the latter seated by an open window and looking backward, wearing a beautiful hat, with a wreath of white flowers resting on her hair. There are some very pretty pictures of children, too: one of handsome little Joe Carr, dressed as a sailor, boy and seated on a pier, with one foot drawn up under him and the other lazily down. In his left hand he holds his broad brimmed sailor hat and a full rigged toy boat, while the other is thrust into the bosom of his open shirt. Mrs. George Beard's little niece is taken as "going to work," with a pretty little skirt tucked up at one side and leaning on a spade, her little bare feet firmly planted on the green sward, and a large water bucket beside her. Mrs. Mortimer Taylor's little girl is represented in a simple dress of tucked white muslin, leaning on a stile, wearing a shirred bonnet pushed back over her bright hair. Miss Lou Locke is represented in the dress she wore at the encampment fete as a grand dame of a century or two ago. She wears a long white satin dress, the train sweeping round in rich folds to her feet and the front of the petticoat wrought in pearls in rich arabesque designs. From the pointed corsage depends long ropes of pearls falling far down the shining satin robe. Around the neck was worn a lace fichu clasped by a large painted medallion, and from the rounded arms, covered with bracelets, fall the old fashioned full sleeve, bordered in pearls. Ropes of pearls encircle her fair neck and all wreathed in her powdered locks.

MISS LILLIE WOOLDRIDGE is pictured as leaning on a rustic stile in a rich ball dress, the front of which is covered by large sprays of embroidered flowers and a full lace corsage, with necklace of pearls and white plumed hat. She is taken in this same dress, reclining in a swing.

MRS. F. W. PARAMORE'S

face smiles at the observer from beneath a large white hat, covered with white plumes, set coquettishly on one side of the Titian locks, arranged in the Langtry style. There is also a fine likeness of Mrs. John W. Donaldson, in handsome dinner dress with her pretty daughter, Miss Aby Donaldson, leaning over her. Mrs. John W. Carroll's little son is taken full size, in a costume of black velvet with point lace collar, and Dr. Gratz Moses' son as a sailor seated on a pier in the middle of a sea.

MISS JULIA VALLE

wears her encampment costume of white brocaded satin caught up at one side, with a cocked hat on her head. Miss Fannie Flesh, is taken in the costume she wore in Stradilla, of pink satin with court train, trimmed with black velvet and black lace sleeves. The whole cast of the Stradilla amateur troupe is here, including Miss Fatemah Diard in her Page's costume, and bust portraits of the Epstein brothers. There are also large pictures of Dr. Mudd and Nathan Frank, the president of the Harmonie club. There is a full length picture of Mrs. Joe Carr, as she represented Marie Antoinette at the encampment. She is dressed in blue satin, the long court train bordered with silver fox. The white wig is observed in high puffs, and surmounted by a blue silk cap with long plumes, from which floats a long point-lace veil. The costume is an exact copy of the original picture at the Tuileries, and is extremely becoming Mrs. Carr's face.

A Red-Hot Day.

To-day was decided by people who had business on the street to be the hottest of the season. Seersuckers were entirely too heavy to carry, and many gentlemen in the business portion of the city disregarded vest and coat and went about in their shirt sleeves. The thermometer, however, although very high, did not reach the altitude recorded on other days. There were indications of a shower during the afternoon, but these passed away, although weather tips pointed to a shower as a likely thing some time this evening. The following is the reading of the thermometer as furnished at Aloe's:

The Water Famine.

Notwithstanding the fact that yesterday was Sunday, and demand upon the city water service presumably light, the situation as to the water supply remains critical. At noon on Saturday there was but 3.1 feet of water at Compton Hill, and at noon to-day there was but 3.5 feet in the reservoir. All good citizens are again called upon to avoid wasting water. Chief of the Fire Department Sexton says that the situation is serious, and that in some sections he would be unable to throw water in case of a fire.

A SUGGESTION.

ST. LOUIS, July 23, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

In advocating the sparing use of water during the heated term, residents in the southwest district may be entirely excepted, as they have no water to waste. Would it be out of the way to suggest that while these people are absolutely destitute of water for any and all purposes, a restraint be put upon the sprinkling carts? Yours respectfully, A SUBSCRIBER.

Mr. Shaw is still hale and strong, and bids fair to live many years yet.

THE PAGEANTS.

Fair Week To Be a Regular Carnival Season.

The Veiled Prophets—The Illuminations—The Military Ball—The Tableaux at the Olympic—The Trades Pageant—Extraordinary Preparations.

The annual fair of the St. Louis Agricultural and Mechanical Fair Association is to be supplemented by a series of nocturnal attractions that will make the week one of carnival indeed. The series of public entertainment will surpass anything in brilliancy ever before attempted on this continent. Fourth and Fifth streets from Franklin avenue to Elm streets, a distance of twelve blocks, and Washington avenue from Fourth to Eleventh streets will be illuminated by the lines, arches and clusters that made such a dazzling show last year. The miles of gas fixtures used in the illumination belong to the merchants of St. Louis, and they have only to meet the expense of gas this time. The illumination will be made each evening of the week commencing on Monday.

On Tuesday night the streets will be given over to the annual

and his retinue. The subject to be illustrated is, of course, kept a profound secret, but this much is known, in length and glory of design it will surpass all previous efforts, and the subject chosen will be one readily understood and appreciated by the general public, which grasped the lesson of some of the floats in the pageants of the past with difficulty. It is, however, very probable—in fact the information comes to the POST-DISPATCH direct—that the grand ball of the Prophets, which has heretofore followed the pageant, will be omitted this year, in consequence of

THE TABLEAUX

to be given by the prophets at the Olympic Theater on Friday night. This entertainment will eclipse the glory of the street pageant, and will be something worth crossing the continent to witness. On Thursday night the streets will be given over to the grand combined trade pageant and display of the military and the Fire Department. Both regiments of the National Guard will turn out in full force, escorting eight companies of the National Guard from the interior of Missouri and Illinois. The Fire Department will lend ten engines, with trucks and hose-reels, to the procession. At the conclusion of the pageant there will be a grand dress drill and military ball at Armory Hall under the auspices of the merchants of St. Louis, all of whom will be charged with the duty of selling tickets under proper restrictions. The money realized is to be distributed among the companies of the National Guard, not to the Armory Hall Association. Every safeguard will be thrown about this feature of the carnival week, and the affair made as select as it will be mammoth.

THE TRADE PAGEANT

will in itself be a spectacle worth traveling many miles to see. It will comprise 150 floats, all typical of the various branches of commerce and manufactures. There will be nothing in it to recall the trade processions of Fourth of July of former years. A plan of each float must be submitted to and passed upon by the Executive Committee before a place is awarded in the line. Maj. C. C. Rainwater this morning showed a POST-DISPATCH reporter a round hundred applications for space. The brewing interest has combined to present three floats, illustrating their industry, which will cost in construction upwards of $4,000. The Famous will put in a float that will cost $1,000. The railroad interest will have four floats, representing the progress in the equipment of railroads, from the primitive low-ceiled box-like car to the magnificent hotel-car of this day.

The Whitman Agricultural Works will have four floats representing machinery in motion. The dry goods house of Frank will show the process of machine knitting. Levison & Blythe will present a model business office. The St. Louis Gas Light Company, the Heisler Electric Light Company, the millers, Corticelli Silk Company, the clothiers, all manner of machines, the photographers with galleries in operation, the Anchor Line with a sixty-feet-long model of a schooner in water.

THE MISSOURI BICYCLE CLUB,

in full force, and a hundred other objects and features of interest will enter into this display, which must be memorable, and which will surely become an annual feature of Fair week. The trade pageant will be brilliantly illuminated by white lights, so as to fully show up the displays. Colored lights will not be used for the purpose. The exact manner of illuminating has not been determined upon, but will be disposed of at the next meeting of the general committee of "The Merchants' and Manufacturers' Display Association."

DON'T LIKE THE EXPLANATION.

What the Backers of the Seven Say About Saturday's Revelations.

The explanation of the real cause of the obstruction of the Solid Seven, as given in Saturday's POST-DISPATCH, caused a great deal of comment, especially by those who are backing the Seven in their warfare. Mr. Peter P. Dailey said this morning that he thought that "the merchant" who was given the credit of letting the cat out of the bag, in the article alluded to, was Mayor Ewing himself, and that Mr. Filley probably coached him as to the way he should put it. Of course, Mr. Dailey was a mile off in his guess. "I'll tell you," said Dailey, "the only fight I have against Filley is that he went back on the best friend he ever had, in politics. He made a dupe of John H. Pohlman, and nobody could do that except a man in whom Pohlman had implicit faith. Why does not Filley say something about the letter he wanted from the Globe-Democrat indorsing John H. Pohlman for Street Commissioner. He pretended to be for him all along. The scheme now proposed is to call a meeting of the Central Committee to discuss the matter, but Filley is afraid that it will be called before he has felt the pulse of the members. If the meeting is called there will be war sure." Mr. Dailey had something to say about Mr. George Kinsky, whose amateur attempts at political work amused him. Mr. Pohlman had little to say, and said that he was satisfied, was out of politics and was attending strictly to his business.

Granite Contracts for Olive Street Awarded—Municipal News.

City collections to-day were: Licenses, $1,496 81; back taxes, $4,325 89.

A case of small-pox was taken from 324 Almond street to Quarantine this morning.

Six building permits for brick dwellings not exceeding $4,000 each in cost were issued this morning.

For the accommodation of architects, owners, builders and the public generally the Commissioner of Public Buildings has issued a pamphlet containing the building ordinances in full.

There were 34 burial permits issued by the Clerk of the Board of Health up to noon to-day, of which 14 were for children under six years of age, several of the latter being from cholera infantum. Such weather as this is very hard on children, and the infantile mortality sums up very high. Cholera infantum, acute diarrhœa and dysentery are very dangerous. Parents are cautioned against allowing children to eat green fruit, and ice-water should be kept in every family.

The Board of Public Improvements met this morning and awarded contracts to Allan & Veiths for the paving with granite of Olive street from Seventeenth street to Jefferson avenue, and Jefferson avenue to Grand avenue. The price was, from Seventeenth to Jefferson, $42,292 50, and from Jefferson to Garrison, $33,533. The firm bid $53,816 20 for paving from Garrison avenue to Grand avenue, which was rejected as excessive.

Legal Doings.

Alfred Lecompte, the boy who was arrested on Saturday for forging the name of a payee to a money order, was released on bail this afternoon, Messrs. Legg & Grabel becoming his bondsmen. On account of his age the bond was fixed by the district attorney at $100.

Geo. T. Plass, a retail druggist, doing business at No. 1850 Broadway, was arrested this morning on a charge of resisting United States Deputy Collectors Taylor, Meredith and Grimm in their attempt to examine his liquor, tobacco and proprietary medicines. He was admitted to bail in the sum of $1,500.

Davis & Davis, as attorneys for Ferd. Offenheimer, doing business under the firm name of Ferd. Offenheimer, filed a suit this afternoon against James H. O'Brien, for the recovery of certain sums of money due on a series of promissory notes: One for $182 07; one for $153 90; five for $100 each, and one for $159 71.

Cholera and Leprosy Ravaging the East.

A Nihilist Plot in Russia—Meeting of the Emperors of Germany and Austria—The French in Tonquin—Cablegrams.

The Cholera.

LONDON, July 23.—A serious outbreak of cholera is expected at Bombay, as there were thirty-seven sporadic cases of disease there during last week, as strict quarantine against arrivals from infected and suspected ports has been removed. Advices from Egypt state that in addition to the outbreak of cholera at the town of Faris Kour, eight miles southwest of Damietta, leprosy has appeared there and is spreading rapidly. There are neither doctors nor medicine at Faris Kour.

AT ALEXANDRIA.

The report of deaths on Sunday from cholera is as follows: At Damietta, 17; Mansurah, 10; Samaroud, 23; Tantah, 17; Chobar, 17; Chibin, 33. At nine other places 78. There were 295 deaths from the disease at Cairo during the same time.

SUPPLYING DOCTORS.

SIMLA, July 23.—A doctor with forty assistants has been ordered to proceed from India to Egypt.

IN EGYPT.

LONDON, July 23.—The returns of mortality from cholera in Egypt differ widely. A dispatch to Reuter's Telegram Company states the number of deaths at Cairo and suburbs in twenty-four hours, ending at eight o'clock this morning, to be 427; at Ghizeh 68 and Chibin 150. The English Government will dispatch twelve doctors who are experts in cholera to Egypt to-morrow.

China.

HONG KONG, July 23.—The Chinese have prohibited the exportation of bullocks for the use of the French troops in Tonquin. Two cargoes of cattle are detained at Hainam. The French Admiral has made strong complaint. The British Consul has also protested, some of the shipments being by an English firm.

Ireland.

DUBLIN, July 23.—Cardinal McCabe, on receiving the clergy on Sunday, condemned the false teachers who asserted that the Pope in issuing his late circular was exceeding his legitimate sphere of authority or had been influenced by secular motives. Those disobeying the circular incurred the guilt of heresy.

Germany.

BERLIN, July 23.—The Prince of Hohenlohe-Langenburg, the president of the German Colonial Society, is about to start on a journey through the United States and Northern Canada.

Austro-Hungary.

VIENNA, July 23.—The Emperor of Germany and Emperor of Austria will meet at Ischil, not at Gastein, where it has all along been understood they would come together. Count Kalnoky, the Austro-Hungarian Minister of Foreign Affairs, will leave Vienna for Ischil to-morrow.

HILL.

The Hill investigating committee this morning considered Coleman's proposition to go to Chicago for the purpose of taking testimony regarding the charges of fraud in the construction of the custom-house of that city. It was desired that the chairman and McClellan should go to Chicago and Alexander should follow if necessary. Coleman said he intended to go West to-night. Totten did not believe he could accompany the committee, but said Hill would be represented. An affidavit was read signed by Patterson & Thatcher, architects, of Chicago, denying that any paper called for by the committee had been destroyed or suppressed. Recurring to the proposed visit to Chicago Totten called upon the committee to state the intended scope of their investigation in that city. He reminded the chairman charges had been investigated by the committee in 1872 or 1873 and hoped the committee would not go over the whole subject of stone cutting. If it was to be inquired into he wanted to know it now, as one of his clients was interested, but he understood the inquiry would be confined to the steam heating charges. The chairman requested Coleman to make a specific statement of the matters he wished to inquire into.

A Masonic Temple.

PARSONS, KAS., July 23.—The corner-stone of the new Masonic temple, being erected by Parsons Lodge, No. 117, A. F. & A. M., was laid to-day with the beautiful ceremony of the order. This building when completed will be one of the largest, handsomest and most convenient lodge-rooms in the State. The main building will be sixty by ninety feet. The lower story will be used for business purposes, and the entire upper story exclusively for the different Masonic orders. The total cost will be $20,000.

Pink Pond Lilies.

From the Springfield Republican.

Pink pond lilies from Sandwich were sold by a Main street florist yesterday for 20 cents a piece. In size and shape they very much resemble the ordinary pond lily, though they are more fragrant. The bulbs originally came from Africa, and a Cape Cod man is said to have the monopoly of them.

The Markets.

FORENOON SESSION, CLOSING AT 1 P. M.

No afternoon session of the Merchants' Exchange will be held until September 10.

A committee on information and statistics of the San Francisco Grain Exchange have compiled a report on the probable yield of wheat and barley in California. The acreage seeded in wheat for 1882 was 3,145,026, and the estimated yield 53,071,000 bushels, against 2,939,139 acres seeded in 1882, with a yield of 37,513,120 bushels. The estimated yield of barley for 1883 out of 902,511 acres was 15,675,900 bushels, against 12,752,300 bushels in 1882 out of 679,006 acres. A New York merchant says that the American farmer who has had to compete only with wheat raised by the cheap labor of Russia, Hungary and European countries will soon have to compete with the five-cent ryot of India. The principal wheat raising governments of India were Punjab, Oudh, Besar and the central provinces. Wheat was profitably grown anywhere between the latitudes ten degrees and thirty-five degrees. Wheat ripened in a succession of belts from the foot of the Himalayas down. One of the leading ideas of British policy in India was to improve irrigation and transportation, so as to develop the producing capacities of the country. The land sown to wheat was not less than 25,000,000 or 28,000,000 acres. The yield of late years has been about twelve bushels per acre, but with improved cultivation it would increase. There were in India about 150,000 square acres of untilled land which were excellent for wheat. The notion that India was worn out was a delusion. In Punjab there were 20,000,000 acres of virgin soil good for wheat, and in the three leading wheat provinces 40,000,000 acres. The British Government had reduced freights nearly 20 per cent; and by improving the direct route through the Suez canal, shipments from Bombay to England cost but little more than shipments from New York, and probably less from the interior of India than from the Mississippi valley. The prices of grain were fixed, not in the producing countries, but in Europe. The great exports of the United States followed seven years of short crops. The total loss of European countries by these short crops was estimated at $1,600,000. Since 1873 this nation had exported something over $4,000,000,000 worth of food products. Exports had declined lately exactly in the same proportion as those of India and one or two other countries had risen.—I. P. Rumsey, of Rumsey & Bull, Chicago, who was on the floor to-day, said that last week he was at DuQuoin, Ill. From returns made to him of wheat threshing around DuQuoin, showed by threshing machine measurement that from 614 acres the yield was only 1,592 bushels, or an average of 2.43 bushels to the acre. Two fields of 190 and 40 acres respectively only yielded one bushel to the acre. Another field of 100 acres, not included in the above 614, did not yield enough wheat to pay for the labor of threshing.—Out of the 143 cars and 11,195 sacks of wheat reported inspected this morning, only 2 cars No. 2 red and 3 cars No. 3 red were old wheat.—A year ago to-day the inspections were 351 cars and 28,000 sacks wheat, of which 247 cars and 25,000 sacks inspected No. 2, or over two-thirds graded No. 2 of the inspections. To-day not one-half graded No. 2 of the inspections. This speaks volumes for the poorer quality of the wheat received so far this year, compared with last year.—C. H. Wall received a telegram from his brother, E. C. Wall, reporting great damage to spring wheat by the recent storms.

The following order from President Ewald was read at the Call to-day: "It being reported to the officers of the Exchange that members gather after business hours and trade in options, in front of the building, the members are once more warned that such gatherings are contrary to the rules, and that the rules will be strictly enforced, no trading, either by members or their brokers, being allowed on the curb. And brokers must confine their trading to the offices of the different members or be subject to fines. The officers of the Board beg all members to help them enforce the rules by absenting themselves and their employes from such gatherings, and by reporting all trading or breaking of the rules, and by assisting in maintaining the dignity of the Exchange."—A New York firm in a late circular say: "Reports from our Produce Exchange are as follows: Wheat crop United States for 1882, 504,185,470 bu; reserve on July 30, 1882, 50,000,000 bu; total 554,185,470 bu. The population of the United States is about 54,807,000, and the requirements for food are about four bushels per capita, making 219,228,000 bu, (the quantity per capita from 1877-8 to 1881-2, including reserve, averaged 4.65 bushels); exports 12 months ending June 30, 1883, 145,781,772 bu; seeding 37,067,194 acres at 1.38 bushel, 51,152,728 bu; estimate for manufacturers, 15,000,000 bu; total, 431,162,500. Reserves on July 1, 1883, including visible supply, 128,022,970."—Telegraph service was again very poor on 'Change to-day. The Chicago markets were received and posted on the blackboards, but they came in slowly and irregularly, and not much reliance was placed in them. No New York, Baltimore or Toledo markets were received, and receipts, shipments and stocks of different markets were badly incomplete.

Wheat—Futures opened largely lower and were weak. The cable from Liverpool was firm, and a slight advance reported, but nearly all outside intelligence from markets of this country were bearish, and the markets themselves were lower; besides that, the weather was clear and hot, and reports on receipts here were of large arrivals of the new crop. This naturally produced a weak effect and caused free selling, and the decline noted. There was a recovery from this depression before long, as more encouraging advices were received, and the active demand displayed for cash on the call strengthened the feeling, but this was not long maintained, for a pressure to sell again developed that carried prices down again, and the close was at declines of ⅜@⅝c from Saturday's close. Corn was weaker, though still showing little change in values: August losing ⅜, September ⅛, and October 1-16c from Saturday's close, but year closing the same as then. Oats were weak and let down considerably, lower markets elsewhere and a reported free movement of the new crop starting sellers. July broke down 1¾, and August and year sold ½c below Saturday's close. Cash wheat moved right actively, opening lower, but strengthening under a first-rate demand. No. 2 red did not reach Saturday's lowest rates, and it was noticeable that shorts were the principal buyers, millers taking very little, but No. 3 red advanced 1@2c above Saturday and was eagerly sought for by millers and shippers. Other grades were scarce. Cash No. 2 mixed corn was firm and all offered met with ready sale, mainly for export, but of white mixed were lower, though in milling and order demand and rejected was weaker. Cash oats declined and were dull, in part due to the small offering and the stiffness of holders.

Wheat—Receipts 16,446 sks, 78,900 bu. No. 2 red $1 03½@1 03¾ regular, $1 04¼ for old; July $1 03½; August $1 03⅝ to $1 04, closing at $1 03¾; September $1 06 to $1 06½, closing at $1 06¼ bid; October $1 07¾ to $1 08⅝, closing at $1 08⅝; November $1 10 to $1 10½, closing at $1 10¼; year $1 03⅝@1 03¾ to $1 03½; No. 3 red 93½@95½ regular, 93½@97 E. side; No. 4 85 bid regular, 86 for E. side; rejected 75 asked regular, 76 bid for E.; No. 2 Mediterranean —, No. 3 do 95 bid.

The market to-day suffered less from the strike and lack of telegraphic reports than on Saturday, New York alone being behind to any extent Spots, both locally and otherwise, continued firm, but dull and unchanged. There were no sales reported at New York, and but 125 and 109 at New Orleans and in the local market. Liverpool reported a moderate inquiry for spots, which was freely supplied at quotations. Futures opened dull at an advance, and closed slightly lower. At New York and New Orleans futures were lower and the movement dull. Telegraphic reports from the former were very meager, the only complete report being the opening one which showed prices at an advance of 2 to 7 points from Saturday's. Other reports were very irregular and incomplete and indicated a decline of 3 or 4 points. New Orleans opened quiet and steady at a decline of 4 to 7 points, and at 1:05 p. m. a further drop of 5 to 7 points was reported.

CATTLE—The market this morning opened strong, with only a moderate supply, the bulk of which were grass cattle. Eastern buyers had not put in an appearance, but butchers and retail buyers for the home market were on hand early, and, although not very urgent in their inquiry, took hold free enough to reduce the offerings of good butchers' cattle considerably. The tendency of prices was largely upwards, and in some instances better prices were obtained than during the closing days of the previous week. As compared with Monday week values are quotably 25@30c stronger for all descriptions. The advance has been made gradually day by day, and was barely perceptible until now the figure three has almost been eliminated. Common cattle of all kinds, however, have not showed quite so large a gain, and it is only when more desirable grades are scarce that salesmen are able to dispose of them at a profit. Transfers this morning were mainly in Texas and Indian cattle of a good quality. Prices ruled firm and upward in tendency at the following:

HOGS—The market at the early opening was marked by activity. Buyers of all kinds were on hand in larger numbers than for some little time past. The offerings were fair and good in quality. Prices ruled very strong from the start and butchers grades in some few instances sold at better figures than at any time during the preceding week. Other descriptions, however, were unchanged, although strong. As was stated all classes were represented, both light and heavy shippers purchasing with freedom while local dealers exhibited considerable urgency also, and as a result the supply was pretty well reduced long before the hour of noon. Sales of lights were mainly at $5 90; good mixed packing $5 35@5 40; good butchers $5 40@5 75 and Philadelphias $5 50@5 60. At these figures the market ruled strong with quotations as follows: Light to good Yorkers $5 85@5 90; rough to good mixed packing $5@5 40; butchers and Philadelphias $5 40@5 75; skips and culls $4 25@4 75.

MONDAY, JULY 23, 1883.

THE cholera that is talked of in Mexico cannot possibly be the old Ganges variety.

IF the telegraph strike continues every first-class newspaper office will have to lay in a stock of homing pigeons.

HE that taketh up the phrase shall perish by the phrase. The Chinese are now insisting that DENIS KEARNEY "must go."

THE present promises to be a torrid week. Touch the water faucet lightly. We are skimming around the edge of a water famine.

WE have interviewed the Solid business men of the city. They are very generally opposed to the nonsense of the so-called Solid Seven.

THE Mayor is having a serious time of it between the malignant attacks of the Solid Seven and the congratulatory post-nuptial speeches of the friendly city officials.

WE hear a great deal about the ability with which the Western Union Telegraph Company is mastering the strike of its operators, but this particular ability doesn't shine out in the handling of the afternoon press report.

ONE of our riflemen in England made a bulls-eye in a target eighteen feet distant from the one he was shooting at, and the arrogant Britisher who was scoring would not tally. It seems that even Providence cannot do anything for our rifle team.

POLICE COMMISSIONER KINKEAD says that when he was first appointed, the Governor told him that he must assist in the work of suppressing gambling in St. Louis. We all know how Mr. KINKEAD shattered his constitution in that business.

GOV. CRITTENDEN is not looking toward St. Louis for popularity. He proposes to submit his record to the agrestic communities which know nothing of the seductive beer garden, and he intends to enforce the Sunday closing law in St. Louis, or sacrifice whole hecatombs of Police Commissioners.

PITTSBURG is not so smoky as it was last week. The Manchester Iron and Steel Company of Allegheny City (just across the river) has collapsed on account of over production. The Pittsburg Traveler will be along in a few days, no doubt, with the information that the mill was simply stopped to give the protected machinery a rest.

STATE SENATOR HATHAWAY, who has recently been peregrinating through the State of Missouri, reports that every Democrat that he saw was for TILDEN and HENDRICKS. Perhaps the Senator only saw those who had been "seen." Of course the Senator is himself in favor of the "old ticket" and as much Reform as can be had for the money.

THE pestilence that is stalking in Egypt is due, no doubt, to John Bull's efforts to suppress the doctrine of Home Rule in the land of the Pharaohs last summer. The wretched children of the Nile, never half fed at best, lost their crops last year, and have since been in a semi-starving condition. Neglect of common sanitary rules has made them an easy prey to disease, and now to add to the horrors of the occasion the rinderpest is raging among the cattle in the most prosperous districts. Charge this all up to Mr. Bull.

As was to have been expected, the Democratic City Committee has indorsed the Seven Foolish Virgins who are attempting to force the Mayor to divide his patronage with them, and now there is talk to the effect that the Republican Committee will anoint the backbone of the Solid Six with a resolution. Meanwhile the Democratic asses that are trying to get at the official thistles are wagging their hairy ears under the shade of the public crib, and the placid Mayor is getting ready to take a trip to the far-off region "where rolls the Oregon and hears no sound save its own dashings."

PRESIDENT ARTHUR suddenly packed his fishing traps and his shirts on Saturday afternoon, and sailed away on the United States steamer "Dispatch." His cruise is in the interest of recreation and health. It costs money to run the "Dispatch," and every time the screw turns in behalf of Mr. CHESTER A. ARTHUR the people are taxed. Mr. ARTHUR should have his fun, but there is something uncomfortable about the thought that Mr. ARTHUR, who makes some pretense to reform, is as much of a beat as was RUTHERFORD B. HAYES and Gen. GRANT when they had access to the Treasury.

THE Republican reprints, approvingly, we presume, an article sent out by the TILDEN library bureau, demonstrating that it is possible for a man to be seventy years of age and still capable of eating, sleeping and thinking. The cases of GLADSTONE, HANNIBAL HAMLIN, HENRY WARD BEECHER, CHARLES O'CONNOR and a dozen other septuagenarians are cited. The senior KNAPP of the Republican is in himself a remarkable instance of longevity and vitality. Though nearly eighty years of age, according to recent newspaper authority, he is still able to direct his great journal and is most active in the movement now going on to convert the White House into a "Home for Aged Men."

HAMMOND'S DIAGNOSIS.

From the way that Dr. WILLIAM A. HAMMOND writes about woman in the North American Review, we infer that already he is bald-headed and reckless of consequences. He not only says that her brain is lighter and poorer in gray matter, with less intricate convolutions and fewer secondary fissures, than man's, but he asserts that she cannot reason abstractly nor exactly, has no conception of abstract justice in a case where her emotions are involved, and is therefore incapable of telling the truth in such cases.

Moreover, he says that, owing to the "peculiar neurotic condition called the hysterical which is engrafted on the organization of woman," there is in every woman "a potentiality for irregular, illogical, incongruous and altogether inharmonious conduct under circumstances which require the utmost degree of presence of mind and discretion." After making this aggravating medical argument against woman suffrage, the learned doctor tries to sugar-coat the bitter pill by saying that she is still man's equal, and in many respects his superior.

He is only contending that she is by nature unfitted for man's duties and labors, just as man is unfitted for hers, and that it is not necessary for either to undertake the other's duty or labor in order to assert their equality. If he will undertake to read his article to the next conclave of woman's righters, perhaps he may prove what he says about the ease with which women can be "thrown into a condition of the most astounding turbulence." It would test her alleged "potentiality for irregular and altogether inharmonious conduct."

AT IT AGAIN.

It again becomes our unpleasant duty to call the attention of the authorities to the fact that the St. Louis Republican persists in violating the law of the State against printing and publishing lottery advertisements. The Republican not only violated the Sunday law yesterday by continuing its regular week-day business on Sunday, but it published, in the disguise of ordinary reading matter, a big advertisement of the Louisiana State Lottery, thereby violating the following law of the State of Missouri:

> Any person who shall sell or expose to sale, or cause to be sold or exposed to sale, or shall keep on hand for the purpose of sale, or shall advertise or cause to be advertised for sale, or who shall print or publish such advertisement, or shall aid or assist, or be in an anywise concerned in the sale or exposure to sale of any lottery ticket or tickets, or any share or part of any lottery ticket in any lottery, or device in the nature of a lottery, within this State or elsewhere, and any person who shall advertise or cause to be advertised the drawing of any scheme in any lottery, or shall print or publish such advertisement, and shall be convicted thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, shall for each and every such offense forfeit and pay a sum not exceeding one thousand dollars.

The advertisement referred to filled a column in the Republican, was addressed "To the Public" over the signature of "M. A. DAUPHIN, President of the Louisiana State Lottery Company;" and, while it included an official letter from Postmaster Gen. HOWE, was nothing more nor less than an elaborate advertisement gotten up to aid the sale of lottery tickets. It is a lottery advertisement, and as such its insertion in yesterday's Republican was paid for. The Republican has systematically violated the law against lottery advertisements, and will continue to so do until its lawlessness is punished.

Not long ago our virtuous contemporary severely condemned a prize-package tea store enterprise on Fourth street, and denounced it as a lottery. It told the public in a loud voice how it had refused the wicked advertisement of this demoralizing tea store. Perhaps the Louisiana swindlers pay better rates.

FORAKER'S TASK.

If we are to judge from FORAKER'S speeches, the Republican party of Ohio is in a very debilitated condition and heinously unprovided with campaign thunder. The Republican nominee's speech at Hamilton was a remarkably tame and pointless rigmarole. In trying to make a point out of the differences and uncertainties of Democratic opinion on the tariff question, he declared himself a Protectionist, though the leading organ of the Ohio Republicans and his chief supporter in the present contest, the Commercial Gazette, is one of the sturdiest opponents of Protection. His answer to the arraignment of his party for administrative corruption was the pot-house allegation that the foreman of the jury acquitting the Star Routers was a Democrat, and acquitted them "for revenue only." The remainder of his speech was a defense of the Scott law, and of his party's course on the liquor question. This defense was bound to be an inconclusive whine when the following remarkable confession was its keynote:

> We do not claim that it is perfect; legislation seldom is. We do not claim, either, that it will give entire satisfaction to every man and every class of men in the State; there are very few laws that do. But we do claim that it is better than anything we have had in this State since the adoption of the present Constitution. For thirty years the traffic has had free trade and been practically free from all taxation. During all this time it has been growing in strength, multiplying its evil and increasing the costs of government. This has been profitable to the dealers, but unjustly expensive to the people who have had to foot the bills.

For nearly thirty years the Republican party has held almost undisputed sway in Ohio, and all that time has pretended to be the party of the churches and of high moral ideas, especially hostile to rum; and yet, during all that time, saloons have been free to run without special license, free from special taxation, and, as Judge FORAKER admits, "practically free from all taxation." All that time its organs and leaders have pretended to wage war against the whisky influence in politics, and have played fast and loose with the earnest temperance people—fooling them with fanatic laws which were unconstitutional. Now its organs and leaders present themselves in the sorry attitude of begging for both saloon and temperance influence on the basis of a law mildly taxing the whisky traffic, and having reached this point of reformation they have the impudence to arraign Democrats as friends of untaxed whisky traffic, because they prefer in Ohio what all the other States have, a well regulated license system.

If Judge FORAKER'S is the strongest presentation the Republican case in Ohio admits of, it is unfortunate for him that he has been doomed to defend it.

SEVERAL persons have written to us to know what was meant by the reference the other day in the POST-DISPATCH to the fact that Gen. PHIL SHERIDAN once saved the life of Emperor WILLIAM, of Prussia. It was at the battle of Gravelotte, Franco-Prussian war. WILLIAM, then King of the Teutons, sat on his horse on Eagle Hill, watching the battle. BISMARCK was there; likewise several Princes and staff officers and a colored man, who seemed to have charge of the unused refreshments. SHERIDAN was with the party in the capacity of "military observer." He observed the French lines advancing through the woods in front and flank of the royal party. None of the others saw the danger. He shouted out "BILL you'd better retire." The King seeing the advancing foe turned and scampered, followed by the entire party. An hour afterward a shell burst on Eagle Hill on the precise spot previously occupied by the King's horse. BISMARCK said afterward that it was SHERIDAN'S quick eye that saved the entire House of Brandenburg, together with BISMARCK and the colored man who had charge of the refreshments. Some people want to run SHERIDAN for President on this account. See M. HALSTEAD'S 11 vol. history of "The Only Battle I Ever Saw."

SOME dirty blackguard and corner-grocery politician writing from this city to the Sedalia Democrat in behalf of BILL MORRISON for President, and who wishes to "enthuse a little Western manhood into our next canvass," refers to the old ticket boom and says, among other inane and stupid things:

> Mr. Pulitzer, who so violently attacked Mr. Tilden in 1882, through his POST-DISPATCH, has been seen, and finds that there are no obstacles in the way of Tilden's being a candidate.

Mr. PULITZER met Mr. TILDEN on a railway train recently, and, inasmuch as a great deal had been said in the newspapers of and concerning the old gentleman's physical condition, he wrote for The World a statement which was, in effect, simply the publication of a piece of news. The New York World is not booming Mr. TILDEN, neither is the POST-DISPATCH. It would be well for the statesman who is trying to set fire to the prairies with the blazing name of BILL MORRISON to "enthuse" a little more truth "into" the next important proclamation that he sends to the Sedalia Democrat.

THE mariners of America who guard our seas occasionally do not reflect the utmost credit upon the star-spangled banner. A number of the officers and men of the Lancaster, now at Hamburg, have been arrested by the police and fined for drunkenness and disturbing the peace. Shade of PAUL JONES, can this be true? Is the American navy to be sent to a German rock-pile, and its valor and energy used in the triturationof Teutonic macadam without one scream from the bird of the free? Are our men of war to be run in in a hoodlum wagon without the effusion of blood? Must the Secretary of the Navy include among the estimates for future fiscal years an appropriation for fines for resisting German police officers. In the immortal words of "Pinafore," this is going too far. Imagine PERRY clubbed into submission by a policeman's billy. Think of FARRAGUT lugged down street with the nippers on. Fancy DECATUR fined $3 and costs and given a stay of eight hours. Our historic naval motto, "Don't give up the ship," will have to be changed to "Cheese it—'ware cops—nixy weeden."

PROHIBITION has received another severe blow in Missouri. The Plattsburg Lever, the palladium of the temperance people—edited by JOHN M. MCMICHAEL, the Prince Rupert of the Prohibition army—has been sold to some people who propose to convert it into an "old Hunker" Democratic organ. To see this glorious gonfalon trailed in the dust must bring tears to the eyes of Chaplain BROOKS. It is understood that MCMICHAEL is going out to Colorado to look after some of his mines. "MACK" has been a good and faithful worker for the Prohibition cause. In addition to this he has published the best and most carefully edited weekly in the State (the WEEKLY POST-DISPATCH excepted). In the matter of typography and freshness the Lever has been a model for the rural editors and a credit to the State. Of course no thorough journalist ever permanently quits writing and printing until the coffin-lid is screwed down on him, and we shall expect to hear of MCMICHAEL awakening the Fontarabian echoes in Central Missouri before another year.

A BASE-BALL club disbanded at Camden, N. J., on Saturday, and in less than ten minutes after their release the players were gobbled up by representatives of the great base-ball interests from all sections of the country. One went to Baltimore, several to Brooklyn, another to Philadelphia, etc., all at big salaries. It is strange that a base-ball club, even in New Jersey, should have felt the necessity of disbanding on account of financial troubles. In this city a base-ball park pays better than the best theater, and the capital invested is only about $5,000. Next season it is not unlikely that MCCULLOUGH, BARRETT, KEAN, MAYO and all the muscular actors will take to base-ball playing. There is more money in it than there is in the "legitimate."

THE Globe-Democrat this morning follows up our paragraph of Saturday urging the Board of Health to wake up. The wise provide against danger before it is near. Again we warn our officials that they had better display something else than "the insolence of office." The streets are not cleaned, we suppose, because there is no pending election at hand. The people ought to meet en masse and give our City Hall Moguls a taste of their temper. One hundred thousand dollars spent now in cleaning up may save a million dollars before the year is out.

THE METROPOLITAN PRESS.

What the Editors of the New York Journals Are Saying To-Day.

By Telegraph to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, July 23.—The World says: "Now Foraker has spoken, and if his note is a key-note the campaign will be a weak one. If Hoadly is a leader who has in his army a few disaffected followers, Foraker is a leader who would suit better in command of the rear guard. He was called on to speak out loudly and plainly, and he falters and hesitates. He doubts and evades and equivocates. He is afraid to say anything."

THE SUN.

The Sun says: "The man who, more than anybody else, is responsible for the drunkenness that disgraces the army and navy of the United States is R. B. Hayes, of Fremont, Ohio. He made conviction and punishment for drunkenness a farce by re-instating the convicted officers as fast as they were dismissed from the service. This is the man who, while in the White House, never drank wine at his own expense."

THE TIMES.

The Times says: "It is reported that the Post-office Department is preparing evidence to be used in civil suits against the members of the Star-route ring, and that Judge Gresham has been paying some attention to this important matter. He has probably discovered that there is in the department abundant evidence on which to base such suits, and he must know that there can be no sufficient cause for further delay. Eighteen months have passed since Mr. James asked the Department of Justice to sue for the money that had been stolen, and since the Attorney-General approved the request and declared that 'the uttermost penny lawlessly received and taken from the public treasury must be recovered.'"

THE TRIBUNE.

The Tribune says: "Reports from the South as well as from the East lay additional stress upon the need of a strict observance of quarantine regulations at all the ports of the United States. The cholera in Egypt seems beyond all control, and the possibility that it may soon spread to places on the northern shore of the Mediterranean Sea stares Europe in the face. From Havana it is reported that thirty-five deaths from yellow fever occurred last week. There is no call for nervousness in this country through fear of either of these diseases, but there is surely infection enough around us to make careful precaution imperative."

POLITICAL NOTES.

GOVERNOR HAMILTON, of Illinois, has declared that the military companies of that State shall not parade on Sundays.

THE Atlanta Constitution alludes to Mr. Wharton Barker as a politician with literary intentions and financial longings.

THE Louisville Courier-Journal thinks that the chief objection to Chandler is that he is "too confoundedly smart at times."

SENATOR PUGH, of Alabama, says the Republicans should nominate John Sherman for President, if they want to run their best man.

THE Inter-Ocean says dark horses are hitched to every swinging limb within ten miles of the Illinois State-house, and their pawing can be heard all over the State.

HENDRICKS is tolerably sure of having something to do for his country. Should the "old ticket" miss fire he will probably be the next Governor of Indiana.

AN effort will be made to induce Schuyler Colfax to be a candidate for the office of Governor of Indiana, but it is believed that he will not, under any circumstances, consent to enter the field.

CONGRESSMAN HESS, of Michigan, says the Democratic members of that State will vote for Carlyle for Speaker, and that in the event of his election Mr. Hurd, of Ohio, will be the party leader on the floor of the House.

EX-SENATOR WALLACE, of Pennsylvania, is said to aspire to the next Democratic nomination to the Presidency. During the time that he has been in private life he has rebuilt his fortune and is now thought to be worth $3,000,000.

IF Mr. Samuel J. Randall should be elected Speaker, the House would be organized for the express purpose of upholding certain individuals or classes to carry on unprofitable industries at the expense of the community at large.—(Indianapolis Sentinel (Dem.)

THE PEOPLE'S FORUM.

Where the Readers of The Post-Dispatch Find a Hearing.

ST. LOUIS, July 22, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Having been a subscriber of your valuable paper for four years, and having never bothered you before, to my knowledge, permit me now to air a little grievance of mine through your fearless and impartial paper. I am a resident of South Second street, between Elm and Spruce. On Second street, just north of Spruce a few doors, on the west side of the street, is a Swiss boarding-house. Now, this Swiss boarding-house contains a lot of Tyrolean catawaulers who make night, until two o'clock in the morning, hideous with their frantic efforts to ape Theodore Thomas' concerts, and which outrivals any lunatic asylum in the West, and which makes it an utter impossibility for any one to sleep until the curtain drops. Now sir, I am a hard workingman and would like to get a few hours' peaceful slumber, uninterrupted by these nocturnal galoots, and to no one can I write to have this wrong remedied, or that will take any interest in the matter, but you. Now, please do what you can in this matter as regards advice how to act, and gain the esteem of

MANY CITIZENS.

Knowledge is Power.

ST. LOUIS, July 23, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Can you inform several lady subscribers of the following: 1. Is it ever, or under any circumstances, allowable for a young lady to permit a gentleman to kiss her? 2. Is it proper to ask a gentleman to call on first introduction? And last of all (a question quite different from the preceding), what is the value of a diamond of 3¾ carats, and how is this computed? By answering the above you will oblige

SEVERAL LADY SUBSCRIBERS.

[1. When a young lady is engaged to a gentleman it is customary for the couple to indulge in osculation, but we don't recommend it. 2. It is, provided a previous knowledge of the standing and character of the gentleman warrants intimacy. 3. Diamonds rate in value according to the color, quality and perfection of the stone. A carat is four grains, jeweler's weight, and a first water diamond, such as you speak of, would be worth about $50,000.—ED. P.-D.]

"Man and Wife."

ST. LOUIS, July 23, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I read with a relish on Saturday your strictures on the vulgar habit of referring to "female telegraph operators" when speaking or writing of women employed as operators. I think the present would be a good time to also overhaul our inconsiderate fellow human beings, who persist in saying "man and wife," instead of husband and wife. No preacher, priest or justice of the peace ever pronounces a couple "man and wife" at the conclusion of the marriage ceremony, and one may look in vain among our court records for a petition commencing with the statement: "That plaintiffs now are, and were at the time hereinafter mentioned, man and wife," etc. Many reporters have fallen into this habit and attention should be called to their carelessness, as they certainly must know better. ADRIANA.

Some Sound Law.

ST. LOUIS, July 21, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Please decide this bet in your valuable paper: 1. If a man gets married to a widow who has real estate, has the man the right to collect the rents and use the money as he chooses without the consent of said widow? 2. If a man gets married to a widow who has real estate does that marriage make him owner of said estate without having it transferred? By answering this you will oblige

A CONSTANT READER.

[1. Unless the property is set aside as her separate estate he would have the right to collect rents and use the money at his pleasure. 2. It does not. If the woman dies the estate descends to her heirs.—ED. P.-D.]

Let the Book-keepers Organize.

ST. LOUIS, July 21, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

"Book-keeper," in your issue of Friday, offers to contribute toward the telegraphers' strike. As a victim in and of his profession, I say hold to your own, and devise plans for a "Life Preserving Aid Association" of book-keepers and entry clerks. There is not in all the various classes of labor, high or low, but has its organization, and why not the book-keepers and entry clerks. Self-preservation is the first law of nature. A few practical heads could meet at some hotel parlor and canvass the subject. The writer will join and would meet men of the profession any time.

A VICTIMIZED B. K.

Edward H. Chapman.

ST. LOUIS, July 23, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

For eighteen years I have almost daily seen an aged man pass my house and go to his business and as regularly he would return. He seemed, as indeed he was, one of the most faithful, quiet, industrious of men. His life work is done. His unblemished record stands in all its silent beauty, at once a comfort, a solace and a happy memory to his family. A well spent and useful, as well as a long life, has now closed its earthly career. Edward H. Chapman died this morning at his residence, 1629 Washington avenue. M. W. W.

Queen Victoria's Italian Residence.

Rome Cor. New York Sun.

At Villa Palmieri, near Florence, great preparations are making to receive the Queen of England. Lady Crawford Balcarres is the owner of the estate. She bought it from Maria Antonietta, widow of Leopold II., Grand Duke of Tuscany. The villa is half way between Fiesole and Florence. It has been much beautified. It commands a full view of Florence and of the Arno plains. It sits on the slope of a hill, on whose top is Fiesole and at whose feet runs the silvery Mugnone.

Queen Victoria will be surprised when she finds her heretic Majesty completely surrounded by monks and nuns of every kind. Looking from the windows of her flowery residence she will see on one side the convent of the Dominicans, where Fra Angelico painted his heavenly frescoes and his olivine angels. On the other side she will see the Calasanzians and Barnabites, with scores of young students. Towering on the very top of the hill, she can observe the old convent of the Hieronymites and the Very Rev. Father Peter Beckx, general of the Jesuits, with the whole staff of this powerful order, including some of her most gracious Majesty's faithful subjects. It is one of the finest and healthiest residences in Tuscany.

City Life.

From the Philadelphia News.

Farming is called a tame and monotonous vocation, and it is. What can farmers know of the excitement of tramping all over a big city hunting for a $2 a week situation, the joy of getting hold of a market vegetable that is not half withered, the bliss of discovering standing room on a street car when it rains, the exhilaration of being carried to a hospital after being crushed in a crowd on some parade day, or any of the other ever-varying incidents of city life. No wonder the farmers' sons want to come to the city, where there is less monotony.

The Barl On Tap.

From the Cincinnati Enquirer.

After all that has been said and written pro and con about Mr. Tilden's candidacy, the preponderance of evidence is on the side of his being a candidate. This preponderance comes to us weekly in the shape of the Democratic Advance, which has, as far as human intelligence may discermine, no other mission than to boom Mr. Tilden for the Presidency. If he were not in the race here is a very considerable expense which might be saved, and we understand that Mr. Tilden is of a saving turn.

Domestic Dynamite.

From the New York Sun.

Bishop Knudson of the Mormon Church exploded dynamite under a bed which contained two of the Mrs. Knudsons. While the result fell short of fulfilling the Bishop's expectations, his effort was more successful than any effort yet made by those other champions of home rule, the Irish revolutionists, in the course of their dynamite campaign in England. The ladies, though not annihilated, were severely injured, and the furniture of the room was destroyed.

"Love Rules the Court."

From the Sedalia Democrat.

Father Phelan is very much exercised over the apostasy of Mayor Ewing, but the reverend gentleman should know that he has few sympathizers with his malefactions. In the poetic language of "The Merry War," a wicked opera, "The ruler of the universe is love—love—love."

Oppahratah Absent.

From the Courier-Journal.

The absence of telegraph operators recalls the story of the old darkey who, hearing the instrument suddenly begin to click while the operator was away, stepped up to it, and, putting his mouth close to it, shouted with all his power of lung: "De oppahratah isn't h'yar!"

The Difference.

From the Rochester Post-Express.

A mother can call "Johnnie, it's time to get up," for three hours without making any impression, but when the old man steps to the foot of the stairs and shouts, "John!" Johnnie takes his breakfast with the rest of the family.

A Mistake.

From the Courier-Journal.

"A Bad Indian Conquered by Soup," says a current headline. But it takes a good deal of soup to drown a full-grown Indian.

De Soto Lodge, No. 90, I. O. O. F., will be visited by Pride of the West, No. 138, and Cosmos, No. 136, this evening, while Harry H. Hess will stand "within the retreat," and find that —— is not always ——.

Germania Lodge, No. 2, A. O. U. W., and Jefferson, No. 14; Globe, No. 54; Helvetia, No. 238, with Star, No. 245, and Golden Rule, No. 265, meet this evening.

Missouri Encampment, No. 59, I. O. O. F., will give the very handsome degree of Patriarch to-night. This body has new and elegant paraphernalia, and will perform the ceremonial with an elaborateness not often seen.

William Rosbyshell will be in the East and Rob McEwen at the quill to-night, where the brethren of Occidental Lodge will raise several candidates to the sublime degree of a Master Mason. Good and elegant work is always done at Seventeenth and Market streets.

DeSoto Lodge, No. 90, I. O. O. F., will have an initiation to-night. Cosmos Lodge, No. 136, and Pride of the West Lodge, No. 138, also a delegation of old Washington Lodge, No. 24, will be present to assist. As the Neophyte is well known and very popular among society people, old De Soto will be most happy to receive all visiting as well as resident members. Don't forget, No. 21 N. Third street, Anzeiger Hall.

On Saturday evening H. A. Thias, D. D. G. M., assisted by Past Chancellors Nath. W. Hunt, Wm. Truesdale and Francis T. Wilcox, installed the officers of St. Louis Lodge, No. 7, as follows: B. Pachall, chancellor commander; H. H. Glesemann, vice-chancellor; T. H. Albert, prelate; Geo. R. Blackford, K. R. S.; M. S. Barbedt, master of exchequer; Wm. H. Rudolph, master of finance; Chas. F. Huston, master at arms; A. L. Pearson, inner guard; Harry Woods, outer guard; Wm. H. Rudolph, P. G. C., representative to the Grand Lodge.

STRATFORD-ON-AVON.

A Visit to the Shrine of Shakspeare.

Manager Charles A. Pope's Note-Book of Travel—A Trip to England and Impressions of a Tourist.

LONDON, May 27, 1883.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

The intending traveler to Europe who has never seen that country and who promises to write some of his impressions to a friend, who prints a newspaper, imposes upon himself an arduous task.

We had a most delightful but uneventful passage across the usually turbulent Atlantic, just rough enough the second Sunday out for a young couple to verify Artemus Ward's cute story. They were sitting, handy, as one may say, to the bulwarks, leaning against each other, their faces wearing an "I don't-care-what-becomes-of-me" expression. Said she: "Oh Harry, why did you bring me on this horrid ship?" And there you sit, and don't try to do anything for me when I am so sick! You ought to be ashamed of yourself after all the sacrifices I have made. Oh, Harry, you know I have thrown up everything for you!"

"Oh, keep quiet, said he, "I have thrown up more than you have."

On Thursday, May 24, we landed at Liverpool. It being the Queen's birthday, the city was gay with flags flying and music playing. Then there was a parade at the town hall. You and your readers know what Liverpool is. A surly, stoung city, noted for its docks and immense shipping trade. It received its greatest stimulus and growth from the importation of American cotton. This was in slavery times. Its merchants also turned an honest penny by fitting out and sending from their port, the Alabama to destroy the shipping of the United States of America. And now there is erected in the plaza of their exchange a memorial statue to the emancipation of slaves, with the legend inscribed, "England expects every man to do his duty." I was not very unwilling to stop one night in Liverpool. I went to the Prince of Wales theater, where I saw a not too good performance of "Patience." My amiable fellow-citizens of St. Louis have had many a better performance for $1 00. It cost me just $1 25 for a seat in the stalls. Next morning I was whirled over to Chester to Stratford-upon-Avon to make my pilgrimage to the SHRINE.

Canals thread the land like an amber ribbon upon a back-ground of green. A notable thing arrested the eye. The girls drove the horses and women steered the boats. The country is now ravishingly pretty. The trees are decked with the white raiment of spring like a young bride. The emerald meadows flecked with golden buttercups, humble daisies and modest violets shyly hiding their heads in the corners of the hedges. Three hours brought us to Rugby, and as I had half an hour to wait, I improved it by looking in at the celebrated school made famous by Thomas Hughes in his "Tom Brown." I was courteously shown through the dormitories, which looked just like little cells. Still, many of the best and brightest of England's statesmen have occupied these very cells.

Another half hour and I halted at Leamington, still sought for its waters. Here I left my luggage, and after a tankard of bitter and a sandwich, I made a bargain with a cabman whom they called Stratfort (a good man) to take me over the country to Stratford on Avon in the birthplace of Shaksepeare! Warwick castle lay in the way. The family was absent in London so I and my opportunity and availed myself of it to look through the grand historic pile. It was something to tread the same halls once made vocal by the king-maker, Warwick, Edward the IV., Richard, Duke of Gloster, Clarence, his brother, Henry the VI., Lady Anne, afterward the wife of Gloster, and many more who live again in Bulwer's "Last of the Barons."

THE CASTLE

is in splendid preservation, and the halls filled with some of the greatest paintings of Van Dyke, Guido, Reni, Murillo, Rubens, Lely, Kneller, Andre del Sarto, Teniers and others. The day was fine and clear and the view from the tower grandly inspiriting.

But I had to tear myself away to reach Stratford before dusk. We soon came to Charlcote, and the coachman halted at the very spot where Shakspeare was caught by Sir Thomas Lucy's men when the lusty youth was making for home with one of the Baronet's deer. The driver showed me the peculiar trick of the style, thus accounting for the capture of the future "bard of the world," and I believed him. Leonidas, Quintius, Curtius, Mutius, Scaevola, William Tell are to me realities. I hate these iconoclasts. Let us hold on to some of our idols. We reached the Red Horse Hotel at a quarter to six p. m., and at just five minutes of six I stood in the house where the light first fell on Shakspeare's eyes. The old lady was very affable and allowed me to linger. From the house, the late I went to the church. It was closed, but I had not come 3,000 miles to sleep the first night in Stratford without at once going and baring my head and bowing in reverence at the greatest shrine upon all the earth!

The sexton soon heard my clamor at the iron portal, but did not wish to let me in "because the boys were rehearsing the chants for Sunday." I told him I was fond of music and was somewhat used to rehearsals. I resorted besides to the universal passport and was admitted. Language utterly fails me to adequately give expression to my sensations when the sweet trebie of their young voices fell upon my ear. The warm red glow of the God of day, sinking with unusual splendor, shot his refulgent rays through the illuminated windows, suffusing the sacred aisles with a mellow religious light.

And so I stood upon the hallowed spot where rests in eternal glory, all that was mortal of that myriad minded man who was not of an age,

But for all Time!

Returning to

THE RED HORSE

I found they had assigned me the same room once occupied by Washington Irving. I need not tell you that his inimitable Sketch of the Home of Shaksepeare has done not a little to give fame and custom to the Red Horse. An amateur performance was to take place at the Memorial Theater that evening. Of course I went; and I was most fortunate in an introduction to the man who had been the grand inspirer, principle worker and most munificent helper to found this fine memorial play-house in Shaksepeare's native town. Mr. G. E. Flower kindly took me to the theater. He takes as loving an interest to-day in the success of his pet as on the day he first conceived the idea of such a monument to "sweetest Shaksepeare, fancy's child." He will have his reward. Will not his name go down with his who will live through all the ages?

When I got back to the hotel (it was called tavern in Irving's time) I had a chat over my tankard of bitter with the bar-maid. She was quite loquacious and rather comely, and brought forth Geoffrey Crayon's sceptre. It is duly inscribed, and I had the pleasure of wielding it. You will own that I had had a day of it, still I started for bed rather reluctantly. I found this in my note-book, which I transcribe:

"May 25—I am in the Red Horse hotel, in the room Washington Irving once slept in. On the walls hang pictures illustrating scenes from the 'Tempest,' the play in which the wondrous genius of the poet reached its maturity. On the table is a copy of his plays, poems and sonnets. I am on hallowed ground. The very air seems enchanted, the spirit of Prospero is in and about me. Come, let us conjure. Bring back the days when the child Shakspeare ran through these lanes as I have seen the Stratford of to-day, running and romping at their play. I trow the children of his day romped and rollicked, cried and laughed, even as these chubby-faced, curly-headed dimpled darlings. Here in this pungent, buxom air, this mighty genius grew and loved—was loved—swaggered and bombasted it with the best of his fellows, learned the woodman's craft, and all the sweet mysteries of nature, found

"Tongues in trees,
Books in the running brooks,
Sermons in stones
And good in everything."

And anon, when his wondrous powers, matured and grown to the full flush of the greatest manhood by constant contact with life, with master minds of his time, he poured from the unerring crucible of his heart and brain

THE GOLDEN CURRENT OF HIS THOUGHT.

"And as imagination bodied forth
The forms of things unknown, the poet's pen
Turns them to shapes, and gave to airy nothing
A local habitation and a name."

I was up bright and early the next morning with the lark "who at heaven's gate sings," that is, I was up, but saw nothing of the lark, for it was raining and just a little unlinviting for a country walk. For I had promised myself a treat, inasmuch as I had proposed to do anything for me when I am so sick! You ought to be ashamed of yourself after all the sacrifices I have made. Oh, Harry, you know I have thrown up everything for you!"

"Oh, keep quiet, said he, "I have thrown up more than you have."

RAILROAD NOTES.

M. Knight, general freight agent of the Wabash, has gone out on the road.

J. M. Chesbrough, Asst. G. P. A. of the Vandalia, returned from Chicago this morning.

Charlie Selden, superintendent of telegraph of the Wabash, has put a lady operator in his office. He says he believes the strike is about over, or was over ten minutes after it occurred.

E. D. Moore, general agent of the Southeastern Railway Association at Kansas City came down this morning. He says the Sunday closing has played thunder with the boys, and they can't buy a postage stamp or peanut or even a drink. He says on the dividing street between Kansas and Missouri, the sight is peculiar; on the west side of the street everything is open, while the Missouri sidewalk is deserted.

The Missouri Pacific, Iron Mountain and Wabash railroads are out in a medical hand-bill, gorgeously printed in rich colors and beautifully allegorical of the extraordinary advantages which the various mineral springs along their respective lines of travel afford the invalid. A palm tree, which is being climbed by a formerly rheumatic, but now convalescent gorilla, bends upon its top wide-spreading leaves upon which are placed the names of the various springs: Montesano, Tozah, Sweet, Montezuma, Hot, Excelsior, Ravenda and Perry, providing a variety of natural medicated waters which ought to have power to cure any disease from corns to lumbago.

W. D. Sanborn, assistant general passenger agent of the C., B. & Q., returned this morning from a trip over the road. He reports the bridge at Sterling, Ill., over the Rock River, as progressing finely. This bridge connects the Rock River and the Sterling branches and shortens the distance between Rock Island and Chicago so as to give the "Q." road the shortest line by twenty-one miles between those points. This bridge also shortens the distance between St. Louis and all Northern Illinois points. The piers and one span are completed and the whole structure will be finished by September 15. Mr. Sanborn says the crops are looking well, and with the exception of wheat, will be full. The wheat crop will be about fifty per cent.

SILLY SEVEN.

The Solid Men of the City Opposed to the Seven Cranks.

Unanimous Condemnation of the Course of the Would-Be Dispensers of Pap—Interviews on 'Change—The Attack on the Mayor Universally Disapproved.

The merchants were not very busy on 'Change to-day, and a POST-DISPATCH reporter took advantage of the lull to slip in among a knot of business men and talk to them about the Solid Seven and their contest with the Mayor.

"Who said Solid Seven?" said President J. C. Ewald, as he turned in a bored manner to the reporter, who had spoken just five words. "Why don't you get rid of a new and interesting subject? Here's the hot weather, and the telegraph strike, and the cholera in Egypt, all of them causing trouble to us, and now you bring up this nuisance. You are going too far. Your presumption will get you into trouble."

"You don't seem to like to discuss the question."

"I'll tell you what I think about the Solid Seven if you want to know."

"Weir?"

"I think the whole of them ought to be drowned. They are a nuisance, I mean as far as their fight with the Mayor is concerned. Everybody is tired of it and everybody has long since ceased to care about it. Yet they keep up this thing, and seem to be of the opinion that that they are making as great a record as the Spartan heroes who fought at Thermopylæ. No, I'm sick and tired of it. At the same time these very solid seven are friends of mine. Stone, for instance, and myself are very intimate. But the whole thing has its interest, and the sooner the Solid Seven quit this wrangling and begin to let the Mayor alone, the better it will be for them and the citizens generally."

MR. E. O. STANARD

was met and asked: "What is your opinion as a business man, of the wrangle between the Solid Seven and the Mayor?"

"The Solid Seven?"

"Yes, sir."

"I think their position is simply ridiculous."

"Is that all?"

"You can say for me, simply, that I think the position taken by the Solid Seven is ridiculous."

MR. D. P. GRIER

was approached, and he seemed to think that it was very unfair to take him upon such a subject.

"I take no interest in the matter at all," he said. "I'm tired of it."

"Tired of the wrangle?"

"Yes. I think that it ought to end right here. In fact I think it ought never to have occurred. The people are tired of it. There is no reason for this fight, and, as far as I can see, the matter should be dropped, because it is interfering with legislation. Let them come together, and all bygones be by—nes."

"Then you are in favor of a solid thirteen?"

"Yes; a harmonious Council, all pulling together, is what every business man would like to see, I am sure."

MR. LOUIS FUSZ

said: "I am not a politician and of course you don't want me to speak about this."

"But as a business man."

"I'm tired of it. Here the matter has been dragging on for months. Several times we understood that a slate was going in. We watched and waited but no slate appeared, and there is no sign of it yet. As far as I am concerned, I would like to see the affairs of the city progressing harmoniously, and the business of legislation going along on easy wheels. That is prevented by the action of these seven gentlemen. I would like to see the obstruction removed. I have no further interest in the matter, because I am not a politician."

MR. SETH COBB

said: "You can say for me that I am entirely disgusted, and so, I think, is every business man and every body else, except those directly interested."

"And the merits of the fight?"

"The fight is about matters which are of no interest to the public, one way or the other. The mass of the citizens do not gain or lose, no matter who wins. It is a trouble to them, however, to have the dead lock, and the seven gentlemen who are responsible for it now should, in my opinion, let the matter drop as soon as possible."

was approached and he was found to have the same opinion as those previously expressed.

"You are not a supporter of the Solid Seven?" asked the reporter.

"No sir," said Mr. Hill. "I do not approve of their course, at all."

"Mr. Stanard thinks their position is ridiculous?"

"Well, I think that it is at least untenable. In the beginning there was no cause for it. It has been drawn out over months and nothing has been accomplished. The sooner it is over the better it will be for all classes, and especially for the Seven."

"You speak simply as a business man?"

"Certainly, and as nothing else. I do not think it beneficial to the city to have a wrangle like this among the municipal legislators. On any other grounds, I do not care, because I am no politician and have no ax at all to grind."

MR. D. R. FRANCIS

smiled when the subject was broached and said: "Oh, the Solid Seven. Are they still as solid as they were some time ago. I've been away and have just come back."

"Yes, they are still supposed to be united like the Siamese twins."

"Well, the matter interests me only as a citizen. I think the course pursued by them is wrong in principle. I would like to see the wrangle over. It would be better for the city, the Mayor and the Seven. What I would like to see, as a citizen, is an united Council, harmoniously working for the interests of the citizens and tax-payers, and not a fragment of the body banded together for the purpose of clogging the wheels of legislation."

MR. J. WILL BOYD

said: "I'll tell you. Business men want to see the offices filled, the Council and the Mayor in harmony, and everything running smoothly. We don't care who gets the offices so long as the appointees are good men—men who fulfill their duties properly. This fight, consequently, has no interest for us. We are tired of it. At least I am, and so are all my friends to whom I have spoken. If the solid seven, as they are known, want to follow a popular will, they would draw out of this fight and let the whole matter die out."

"And about this impeachment of Mayor Ewing?"

"It amounts to nothing in the public estimation, as far as I can judge. The Mayor has done nothing to justify it, as far as I can see. It is a farce, in my opinion. Perhaps the reason for my blindness in this matter is that I am not a politician."

At least a dozen other gentlemen were spoken to, and all expressed opinions precisely similar to those given above. Some of the members deliberately kept themselves out of print by putting their opinions in a form like this: "— — the Solid Seven," and "To —— with the Solid Seven," and other expressions which could never be printed in full in the columns of the POST-DISPATCH. With some of the members the subject was received with derision, and was treated in the same flippant manner in which a variety show performer handles a pinafore joke.

Out of at least fifty members of the Merchants' Exchange who were spoken to on the subject, within an hour, had a word to say in defense of the seven stubborn Councilmen nor in approval of their course. It is evident that their statesmanship and strategy and perseverance has all been wasted so far as the merchants are concerned. As the reporter walked down stairs he met a well-known member of the Exchange who held the presidency some time ago, and to him the reporter put the question for the fifty-first time.

"I'll tell you," said the gentleman interrogated. "I have talked with many of the framers of the scheme and charter, and they and I know that the confirmatory power was placed in the hands of the Council, so that good office holders could be secured. Now, the reason why these seven men are making the fight is not because the appointees are not good, but because control of the seven has an edged tool or two in his hands, and as yet has not been able to get anyways near the grindstone. In other words, it is the usual scramble for office, the scramble that takes place at every primary and ward meeting. It is a pretty state of affairs if the Mayor is to be impeached can't get their pet candidates into the first places. In such a fight all disinterested parties are on the Mayor's side. He has the right to the choosing, and the Council has no right to object unless he selects men unfitted for the places. This is an office-seeker's quarrel, and the business men of course are opposed to the seven gentlemen who brought it on. We want harmony, and don't like to see such attempts to check legislation and municipal business in the interests of the few at the expense of the public crib. The article in Saturday's POST-DISPATCH explained the whole matter, and let in a flood of light on the affair."

CRIMINAL COURTS.

Two Sisters Before the Courts for an Assault and Battery.

Mr. God "Goosed" for Driving an Unfit Team of Horses—A Variety of Offenders Before the Courts To-Day.

Rosie and Annie McGowan, sisters in consanguinity and sisters in sin, were arraigned in the Court of Criminal Correction to-day on charges of assault and battery. When the case was reached on the docket and the defendants left their seats in the auditorium for the defendants' bench the crowd in attendance laughed outright and were only forced to desist by the angry rapping of Sheriff Carr's gavel. They are both on the far side of twenty-eight. Annie is known about town as "Big Annie." A few years ago she began increasing in flesh, and to-day she might be described as decidedly embonpoint. How decidedly will be understood by those who do not know her, when it is said that Annie tips the balance at about 315 pounds, and is in good health and gaining every day. As a consequence to her regnarkable growth in flesh, she has lost her voice, and is now obliged to carry on a conversation in a hoarse whisper. It has been two years since she heard herself talk, and in view of her increasing flesh, she freely admits that she does not expect to hear herself again. Her sister, Rose McGowan, is a remarkable skeleton. Though in good health she does not now, nor has she ever exceeded ninety pounds, although a woman five feet four inches high and nearly thirty years of age. The sisters were charged with making an assault on Molly Murphy, herself a two hundred pounder, and of beating and striking her. Mollie relented, however, and today refused to prosecute the case, which was accordingly dismissed at her costs.

James Davidson alias Williamson, John Heyser, and a man named Dommer were arraigned to-day in the First District Police Court. Davidson has been wanted by the police for a long time, and on Saturday night was met by Sergeant Ryan alias Big Mike. The two calculated that they were able to offer a successful resistance and undertook the contract. In police parlance, this was "punchin' for Mike." A few moments later two of the trio of bad men were sprawling in the gutter, and the third was begging for mercy, which was given him by Mike at the end of a club. To-day each of the men pleaded guilty, and were given hours to leave town.

Meyer Good was arrested on Saturday by Officer O'Malley for driving a team of horses that were badly galled. To-day Judge Napton fined him $10 for cruelty to animals. When Special Officer Holmes was called on to take the man to the station, the old man was very angry.

"What's your name, sir?"

"God," exclaimed the man angrily.

"What's your name, sir?"

"My—God."

"Well, it can't be helped now. What's your name, sir?"

"God."

It required several questions to discover the misunderstanding growing out of the unusual name and the circumstances.

Mary Connor was arraigned before Judge Napton in the Court of Criminal Correction on a charge of resisting the course of the law as represented in the person and will of Constable Pat Kane. Under ordinary circumstances her offense was a serious one, but resisting the process and the law coming in the majestic form of Pat Kane made it almost heinous, and it was only after many promises that she was let off on costs.

Rose Murphy gave bond to-day to answer a charge of slander, which will be tried July 30. A warrant was issued against her at the request of Mary Kern, who charges her with making false accusations against her character.

Thomas Smith and Catherine Ahearn to-day gave bond to appear in the Court of Criminal Correction August 6, and answer a charge of assault preferred by Ann Lambert.

To-day Ernst Gollars was arrested on a charge of living in the relation of man and wife with Jane Eilsaex, to whom he was not married. He gave bond to answer the charge July 26.

Daniel Field will have a hearing on July 26 on a charge of committing an assault with intent to kill on Thomas Churchill.

BARBE BLEUE.

Burnand's Burlesque, to be Produced at the Cave To-Night, Rehearsed.

A Lively Piece, That Will Catch the Town—The Dudes' Chorus and March—National and Local Gags—Brilliant Costumes—178 Dresses to be Worn—Ford's Latest.

The Olympic Theater, stripped of its scenery, with darkened auditorium, and the stage lighted from the alley doors, was yesterday morning the scene of a rehearsal of the burlesque of "Blue Beard; or, The Hazard of the Dye," which will be presented for the first time in the United states by the Ford Opera Company, at Uhrig's Cave, this evening. That the libretto is from the pen of Burnand, author of "Ixion," which was chief of the class when burlesque ruled the stage in the palmy days of the golden-haired Thompson or the statuesque Markham, is sufficient guarantee that the text is bright and sparkling. That the music has been arranged by W. W. Furst, leader of the Ford Company, is a guarantee that the bubbling, dashing libretto has the popular musical setting. A POST-DISPATCH reporter attended the rehearsal and was the sole spectator, seated in the gloom of the parquette, a lonesome sort of an audience. The orchestra man in his shirt sleeves, and the were dressed in the costumes of the street, hats and coats being discarded, however, in recognition of the temperature. The new English prima donna, Miss Alice May, was there working like a beaver. Mr. Ford, with a copy of the libretto, heard the players mumble their lines. A schoolmaster's position was his, and when one of the young people "missed" it additional and immediate study was ordered. Miss May, in a net linen suit, bore little resemblance to the glittering and bejeweled Baron Anonolique de Barbe Bleue of this evening, and Phil Branson, in shirt sleeves, dividing his time equally between his music and a glass of beer drawn from a keg at the rear of the stage, looked like anything but a shepherd.

MEMBERS OF THE COMPANY

MISS LOUISE ESSING,

in a stylish street costume, could not be recognized as the shepherdess, Lili, the wife of Blue Beard. Miss Essing was to take this character, but will be prevented by illness. Miss Mamie Taylor will assume the character of Bequille, a duse, for which Miss Essing was cast.

A call to order, and the chorus came to the front, to rattle through a lively air, at once recognized as Offenbach's. The short-sleeved young men are shepherds and the young ladies in the lawn suits are shepherdesses, and Phil. Branson is Jolliquet. He sings the solo with spirit and then with intervening business a splendid chorus of shepherds, and a Tyrolien chorus by Furst, bring out the full strength of the company. The exquisite adaptation of "Wait until my sighs come to," is ben sung by Seymour. "Wait till his sheep come home." This is certainly a good thing.

"BLUE BEARD'S MARCH,"

a taking composition of Faust's, followed by a song and chorus. "Oh, I say," which will be one of the popular gags, and another comic adaptation. "He kissed her under the hitching hairs" is followed by a duo between Misses May and Essing, entitled "A nice little kiss," which is certainly the most brilliant of Furst's efforts. The chorus with the dudes serve to the wars of Blue Beard's army, to the "March away" chorus of Offenbach.

THE SECOND ACT

is full of musical gems. The solo "My Boy," the shopping quintette, the "Kiss" waltz of Offenbach by the full chorus, a splendid quintette entitled "Ding Ting!" two rattling choruses, "Mum's the Word" and "Peep Boo," and a comical solo and chorus, burlesque on "Home, Sweet Home," are a few of the features, but above all is

"THE DUDES' CHORUS."

This is a most novel feature. The young lady members of the chorus, headed by Misses Taylor and Green, appear as the army of dudes. Rigged up to perfection from the patent leather boots to the round-topped, wide, curling-brimmed white hat of the most approved design. The music of this chorus is delightful and will be whistled upon the streets. It is by Furst. The third act abounds with excellent musical features, the sextette chorus of Blue Beard's warriors being a particular stirring number. A quintette entitled "Tit Tat Toe" is also destined to become quite popular, and the finale is quite strong. The costuming of the play will be superb, and Mr. Ford has been at enormous expense perfecting the details.

THE "DUDE" SUITS

are all tailor-made, and the hats were all specially made. The story of the burlesque is, of course, erratic and absurd, but the libretto is sparkling and abounds with hits of the times, national and local. All the music is light and airy, the young men are pretty, the costumes are, to some extent, light and airy, and, all in all, Barbe Bleue is just the thing for a summer night's entertainment. It is deserving of the successful run which surely awaits it. This morning the final rehearsal was held at the Cave, and everything moved with a precision that guarantees a smooth performance this evening. Manager Ford gave St. Louis "patience" in advance of all other American cities, and in "Blue Beard" has repeated the enterprise. The burlesque was first produced at the Gaiety Theater, London, on Monday, March 12th, 1883, and is still running to crowded houses.

Fighting Taxes.

From the Chicago Times.

How touchy corporations are about their taxes One at Nashua, New Hamushire, which paid last year a dividend of twelve per cent on $150,000 capital, is now fighting the assessor because he has increased the valuation of the property and thereby entailed $1,200 more taxes to be paid upon it. The officers of the corporation are not only huffy, but they advertise the property for sale, as well as threaten to move the works out of town. This looks like bulldozing.

WALK MORE, AND SLEEP SOUNDLY.

Mr. JOHN W. COLE, Principal of the Gale School, Troy, N. Y., writes us:

TROY, N. Y., April 7, 1883.

"Having been afflicted for several years past with illness, the cause of which was unknown to me for a long time, and my continued disability getting to be of so serious and distressing a character as to cause great anxiety with my family and friends, I became satisfied upon close investigation that the cause of my sickness was the diseased condition of my kidneys and liver. At this time by accident a friend who had similar symptoms to mine informed me of the great improvement in his health by taking Hunt's Remedy and persuaded me to try it. I immediately commenced taking it, and from the first bottle began to improve, and its continued use affords very encouraging results. I can sleep soundly, walk better, am free from pains, and the severe attacks of headache from which I suffered so much have disappeared, and I cheerfully recommend Hunt's remedy for all purposes for which it is advertised. I will add in closing, that my wife has used it very successfully for preventing the attacks of sick headache with which she has been afflicted from youth."

ALMOST DISHEARTENED.

A prominent citizen sends us the following statement:

"For several years I have been very seriously afflicted with a severe pain in the back, which I had supposed to be the lumbago or rheumatism in the back. More recently the pains had become more severe, so much so that it was with difficulty that I was able to get out of bed in the morning. I had tried various remedies without apparent relief. By the earnest solicitation of a friend I commenced taking Hunt's Remedy, about three weeks ago, and its instantaneous benefits are wonderful, for I have had no pains in my back since taking the first three doses; and am relieved from the pains, aches, and exhaustive weakness, the painful symptoms that usually accompany disease of the kidneys. And I confidently expect to be completely and permanently cured by the use of it. I most cheerfully recommend Hunt's Remedy to all who are afflicted with any kidney or liver disease.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR

restores with the gloss and freshness of youth, faded or gray hair to a natural, rich brown color, or deep black, as may be desired. By its use light or red hair may be darkened, thin hair thickened, and baldness often, though not always, cured.

It checks falling of the hair, and stimulates a weak and sickly growth to vigor. It prevents and cures scurf and dandruff, and heals nearly every disease peculiar to the scalp. As a Ladies' Hair Dressing, the VIGOR is unequalled; it contains neither oil nor dye, renders the hair soft, glossy, and silken in appearance, and imparts a delicate, agreeable, and lasting perfume.

J. W. BOWEN, proprietor of the McArthur (Ohio) Enquirer, says: "AYER'S HAIR VIGOR is a most excellent preparation for the hair. I speak of it from my own experience. Its use promotes the growth of new hair, and makes it glossy and soft. The VIGOR is also a sure cure for dandruff. Not within my knowledge has the preparation ever failed to give entire satisfaction."

MRS. O. A. PRESCOTT, writing from 18 Elm Street, Charlestown, Mass., April 13, 1882, says: "Two years ago, about two-thirds of my hair came off. It thinned very rapidly, and I was fast growing bald. On using AYER'S HAIR VIGOR the falling stopped, and a new growth commenced, and in about a month my head was completely covered with short hair. It has continued to grow, and is now as good as before it fell. I regularly used one bottle of the VIGOR, but now use it occasionally as a dressing."

We have hundreds of similar testimonials of the efficacy of AYER'S HAIR VIGOR. It needs but a trial to convince the most skeptical of its value.

BELLES IN THE SWELLS.

Hear the cultured bathing belles—
Boston belles!
With their learned disputations over ocean's musty shells.
How they lecture, lecture, lecture,
Even at the water's brink,
On the interesting texture
Of some weed, 'til you expect you're Dumber than the missing link!
And they sputter, sputter, sputter,
In a manner quite too utter,
As their stockings blue are hidden by the swells.
Oh, the belles, belles, belles, belles,
Belles, belles, belles,
Oh, the learning and discerning of the belles!

Hear the jolly bathing belles—
New York belles!
With their eyes filled up with pleasure and their mouths with carmels.
How they giggle, giggle, giggle,
Splashing water in the air!
How they grab the rope and wriggle,
Talking all at once, and higgle
As to who'll first wet her hair!
And they shriek, shriek, shriek,
In a manner quite unique,
As their dainty feet are scratched by horrid shells.
Oh, the belles, belles, belles, belles,
Belles, belles, belles.
Oh, the flirting and diverting of the belles!

THE INDIAN PROBLEM.

The First Payment of Rent to the Red Man a Step to a Solution.

From Little Rock Cor. of N. Y. Herald.

Advices received this morning from Indian Territory announce that the result of the recent leasing of the surplus land in the Indian country for grazing purposes is gratifying and promises to revolutionize the entire Indian question within fifteen years. The leased land in Cherokee nation is known as "Cherokee strip," and embraces several million acres, for which the lessees pay $100,000. The lease is for ten years. The Osages and neighboring tribes have also leased tracts of land in their territory, and very recently the Cheyennes and Arapahoes leased the western portion of their reservation comprising about six hundred thousand acres, to a company of stockers, for a term of ten years, at a rental of $62,357 60, payable semi-annually in cash and cattle.

THE FIRST RENT RECEIVED BY INDIANS.

The first semi-annual payment was made last week at the Cheyenne and Arapahoe Agency. According to request of the Indians payment was made in silver, the lessees waiving the right to pay half the amount due in stock. The money was brought from Caldwell, Kansas, in a wagon drawn by four mules, and guarded by eight Indian police. It was packed in five boxes and four kegs and weighed nearly two thousand pounds. The total amount was $31,000, all in one dollar silver pieces. An animated scene occurred when the money reached the agency. It was taken to the commissary, poured out on a long, narrow table, and counted in piles of $10 each. Payment was made on the ration plan, every person entitled being presented with a ticket. When the count was made and the money found correct it was announced that the distribution would begin. The immense crowd of Indians who had gathered about the building, watching the arrangement of the silver with curious gaze, now pressed forward and presented their tickets. Men, women and children pushed and jostled each other in a determined attempt to reach the table first. The flashing eyes, copper-colored faces, eager attitudes and picturesque costumes of the throng formed a picture that, once seen, was never to be forgotten.

A STRIKING SCENE.

As the number on each ticket was called the disbursing agent dropped the money into a blanket held out to receive it, and the recipient passed out of the building. The amount paid each man, woman and child in both tribes was about $5. Two days were required to make the payment, the lessees desiring that no one should be overlooked. A large amount of the money was paid the merchants at the agency in exchange for goods of various kinds, though many Indians refused to spend their share of the money, declaring they would keep it for future need.

CATTLE TO BE PAID AS A PORTION OF THE RENT.

The second and last payment will be made next January, when half of the amount will be paid in cows and heifers. It is the intention of the Indians to engage extensively in the cattle business. The cattle thus accumulated will be held in common, the herd being in charge of a competent white man, whose salary is to be rated according to his ability, running upward until at the end of ten years it will reach $5,000. The Indian Department is interested in the matter, having agreed to invest as much money in cattle as the Indians themselves, contingent upon a Congressional appropriation for the purpose. The Indians propose to buy 800 head of cows and heifers at a cost of $25,000. The department proposes to furnish an equal number, together with a number of blooded bulls. At the end of ten years, when the grass lease expires, it is expected that the herd will be worth $3,000,000, thus making the tribes self-supporting. It is believed that nothing can prevent the success of the undertaking.

INDIANS AS CATTLE OWNERS.

The Arapahoes and Cheyennes have already 750 head of cows and twenty-five head of blooded bulls, all of which were furnished them by the department, and altogether they will be known as the agency herd. A manager has been chosen, and this coming week will see the undertaking inaugurated. The cattle will range on the country north of the agency, but as soon as possible a pasture, inclosing the Kingfisher and Clear Creek valleys, will be fenced, giving the tribes the finest range in the New World. The herd will be held in common for several years, when it will be divided between the two tribes. The Indians are very enthusiastic concerning the enterprise, declaring that it is the first step toward independence.

THE PLAN APPROVED.

The plan is generally approved. United States Indian Agents Hunt and Miles commend it highly, and Secretary Teller and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs give it emphatic indorsement. Should it prove successful it will be a pratical solution of the Indian question.

AMERICANS OF ROYAL DESCENT.

Alleged New York Branches of Kingly Genealogical Trees.

From the Pall Mall Budget.

If the American Republic is not in danger it is not because of any lack of claimants to royal descent among its citizens. According to an insignificant-looking book which is being secretly circulated among the upper classes in New York, the descendants of kings literally swarm in the Empire City. However republican may be the spirit of the New Yorkers in the abstract, many of them take intense interest in ascertaining whether they belong to the "Americans of Royal Descent" whose genealogy is given in a volume with that title privately published by Mr. Browning, himself a descendant of William the Conqueror. The little volume, which is constructed somewhat on the plan of a railway guide, possesses an air of reality and truthfulness, although its revelations are of a most startling character. Satisfactory as it may be to know that one descends from a portly Dutchman who "loved gold in special," there is yet a higher satisfaction—nay glory—in the thought that the stout-heartedness of a Robert Bruce, the goodness of a King Alfred and the magnanimity of a Charlemagne have all something to do with the qualities of the Van Cortlandts, the Rutherfords and the Lawrences of the present time. Van Cortlandt, as Mr. Browning has discovered, is a corruption for McCortlandt, and as only two generations ago a Miss Barclay marrying a Mr. Van Cortlandt brought the royal blood of James I. and Robert Bruce into the family, all the Van Cortlandts of New York are lineal descendants of the hero of Bannockburn. The family of Rutherford, after some indecision as to whether they were "furds" or "fords," happily adopted the u, which now entitles them to regard themselves as descendants of Charlemagne, to say nothing of Scotch kings, English lords and French dukes, whose glittering splendors adorn the family tree of the otherwise prosaic Rutherford. The Lawrences are shown to have descended from Alfred the Great, the Clarksons claim descent from St. Louis, the Hydes from Edward III. The Lloyds trace their pedigree back to the husband of Lady Godiva, and the Lansons come in a straight line from Queen Eleanor. There are so many "king's children" in New York that if the royal race should die out in the effete Old World there would be no difficulty in supplying the deficient yield of kings, as of breadstuffs, from across the Atlantic.

A STARTLING THEORY.

A Suggestion that Contagion May Be Spread by the Electric Telegraph.

From the Pittsburg Commercial Gazette.

Americans have been congratulating themselves that even under the most favorable circumstances, the cholera now raging in Egypt could not reach this side of the Atlantic before the cold days of the winter would be ready to freeze it out. There is a possibility that this is another case of exultation before being free from the shadows of the timber. There is a theory held by some scientists that disease may be transmitted by electricity, and that over the wires cholera can pass from Egypt to Europe and from Europe to America. Prof. Hardin, of Baliol College, Oxford, who is here on a visit, was ased about this theory, and answered:

"I think that a power which transmits sound, movement and heat might also transmit certain impalpable influences of disease, but this is at complete variance with the germ theory. Some have gone so far as to hold that cholera could come from Egypt on the regular telegraph wires, but I cannot conceive such a thing possible. In the first place the operator at the Egyptian end of the wire would have to be suffering from cholera, which could hardly be if he were at work. The only one affected, too, conceiving such a thing as this, would be the operator on that particular line, and he could not transmit it any further, unless he should go on working his instrument when he is taken sick. Any cut off would end the circuit by which disease might be transmitted. I don't think it possible that electricity can spread disease under any known circumstances."

A Pittsburgh physician who was asked for an opinion, said: "You don't expect me to oppose the views of a man like Hardin? I should be laughed at. All the same I have been studying this new theory and I am half inclined to believe it. Electricity is so strange and is so little understood that nothing about it would surprise me. The ideas about the contagious nature of cholera, however, have changed. You could wear the clothes a cholera patient died in without a bit of danger, and I don't think it can ever become epidemic in the United States or Europe again. It is too easily checked and yields too rapidly to cleanliness."

He had a fly-screen under one arm and a bundle of sticky fly-paper under the other as he entered a Michigan avenue saloon yesterday and said:

"Why don't you keep 'em out?"

"Who vash out?" asked the saloonist.

"Why, the pesky flies. You've got 'em by the thousand here, and the fly season has only begun. Shall I put fly-screens in the doors?"

"Vhat for?"

"To keep the flies out."

"Why should I keep der flies oudt? Flies like some chance to go aroundt und see der city, der same ash beoples. If a fly ish kept oudt on der street all der time he might ash vhell be a horse."

"Yes, but they are a great nuisance. I'll put you up a screen door there for $3."

"Not any for me. If a fly vhants to come in here, und he behaves himself in a respectable manner, I have nothings to say. If he don't behave I bounce him oudt pooty queek, und don't he forget her!"

"Well, try this fly paper. Every sheet will catch 500 flies."

"Who vhants to catch 'em?"

"I do—you—everybody."

"I don't see it like dot. If I put dot fly-paper on der counter somebody comes along und wipes his nose mit it, or somebody leans his elbow on her und vhalks off mit him. It would be shust like my boy Shake to come in und lick all der molasses off to play a shoke on his fadder."

"Say, I'll put down a sheet, and if it doesn't catch twenty flies in five minutes I'll say no more."

"If you catch twenty flies I have to pry 'em loose mit a stick und let 'em go, und dot vhas too much work. No, my frendt; flies must have a shance to get along und take some comfort I vhas poor once myself, und I know all about it."

"I'll give you seven sheets for ten cents."

"Oxactly, but I won't do it. It looks to me like shmall peesness for a big man like you to go around mit some confidence game to shwindle flies. A fly vhas born to be a fly, und to come into my beer saloon ash often ash he likes. When he comes I shall treat him like a shentleman. I gif him a fair show. Grant's Love for Children.

From a Washington Star Long Branch Letter.

Sturdy soldier as he is, General Grant has a tender corner in his heart for the young, and especially for his own relatives, and is very thoughtful about their needs. Recently, going into a United States National bank in New York, he asked its vice-president to get him twenty English sovereigns. The next day he came back, and as the twenty English gold pieces were counted out to him, drew out of a vest pocket $100 in United States Treasury notes, which he had rolled up in farmer style, and paid them over, while out of another pocket, carefully wrapped in paper, he took a handsome new Russia leather pocketbook, in which he deposited the gold, saying as he did so, "I have a little niece who is going to Europe to-morrow. She never had $100 of her own before, so I am going to delight her heart with this." This niece is the daughter of his sister, Mrs. Cramer.

Last Monday morning there were nine cases upon the police docket, and the same number this morning, and in every case it was found that beer or whisky were the causes of the arrests. At least the witnesses in all the cases mentioned these in giving testimony. Henry Kiskey got drunk and wanted more money to finish up his spree in good style, and because his wife declined to give it to him began throwing brick-bats at her and clubs at his son. He will pound rock twenty-six days. Joseph Manion came here a day or two since with a broken arm in a sling. He found as he said friends who gave him seven or eight glasses of beer which made him feel as if he was the owner of the town, and his arm will now have a chance to heal while he abides at the Work-house fifty-six days. Patrick Reynolds and Mike Collins were charged with assaulting Walter White and the looks of the complainant's eyes testified to the assault. Collins was called upon to pay costs for his part in the affray, but Patrick Eagan, member of the Lower House, came to his relief and signed an appeal bond. Reynolds boldly declared he assaulted White, that it was an old grudge and proposed to settle it. "Fifty dollars and costs," said the court. Various parties for being drunk were fined from $3 to $10. Richard Gleason, Mike Clunin and Ed Mannion, whose cases were continued from last Monday, charged with loafing, were discharged, at which there was great joy and rejoicing among their friends and a general "setting-up."

A frame stable belonging to Mr. Bryant, residing on Menard near Fourth street in the First Ward, was set on fire by several boys yesterday afternoon and completely destroyed with all its contents. Mr. Bryant estimates his loss at $400, without insurance.

The account of the cutting affray, as published in Saturday's issue, was unintentionally severe upon Mr. Metcalf, who is a very quiet and gentlemanly young man. His side of the story, which is corroborated by several prominent members of the Indian Lake Gun Club, who were present, is that the trouble arose from a decision in which Mr. Metcalf was judge, and which went against Dunn, who became very indignant, and abused Metcalf in the vilest manner possible, at the same time advancing in a threatening manner. He was told to keep away repeatedly by Metcalf, who warned him he would get hurt, but having become possessed of a revolver, he continued to advance, when the former used his knife in self-defense.

The St. Louis Club Climbing to the Top—Racing—Gossip.

The Louisville Club, in a hospital condition, were terribly trounced by the Browns yesterday afternoon. The score stood 14 to 4, and should have been smaller on the Louisville side of the count. Browning, the short-stop, and Sullivan, the catcher, were so lame that walking for either of them was very painful and running impossible. "Juice" Latham took his turn at the bat in the first inning, but never went to the field, he being suddenly taken sick. Whiting took his place. "Buck" Weaver was not in condition, and the Browns batted him for 20 hits, with a total of 31 base hits. The Louisvilles made 8 base hits. Errors: St. Louis 5, Louisvilles 7.

On Saturday, with Hecker pitching, the Louisvilles were again defeated by a score of 5 to 4. Base hits: St. Louis, 13, Louisville, 6. Errors: St. Louis, 2, Louisville, 4.

At Columbus, on Saturday and yesterday, the Cincinnati champions were defeated by the home team in two good games. Yesterday's score was, Columbus, 4; Cincinnati, 2. Base hits: Columbus, 10; Cincinnati, 5. Errors: Columbus, 1, Cincinnati, 2. On Saturday, the score at the end of the ninth inning was, Cincinnati, 1; Columbus, 1, and in the tenth the Columbus club whitewashed the champions and made five runs themselves.

Tom Deasley says that Lewis is not yet in condition to bat, because his hand is still sore. "Wait till his hand gets well and you'll see some leather hunting," is Deasley's way of putting it.

Deasley's suspension has been reconsidered, and he will play in the remaining Louisville games.

It appears that the Browns were whitewashed this season, notwithstanding that the answer on Saturday was given on good authority. The terrible event took place on the 12th of May, and the Eclipse Club of Louisville was the guilty party to the transaction.

The Athletics still lead. They have won 36 out of 52 games, while the Browns have won 38 out of 55. The percentages are: Athletics .692, St. Louis .690.

Quincy defeated Bay City by a score of 6 to 0, on Saturday.

ÆTAT 95.

Ralph Clayton, the Oldest Resident of St. Louis County, Passes Away.

St. Louis county yesterday lost, in the death of the venerable Ralph Clayton, its oldest and best known resident. Mr. Clayton was born in Augusta county, Va., on February 22, 1788. His father, a citizen of London, came to this country in 1744. Ralph was the first-born of his father's children, and he survived all of his six brothers and sisters. Ralph learned the tanner's trade, and about 1805 removed to Richmond, Va., and worked in Tate's tannery, in that city. He came West in 1818 with Col. Wm. Miller, of Miller's Iron-works, Virginia, Dr. Joseph Craig and Joseph Christman. The party landed in St. Louis, then a town of 2,000 inhabitants, on November 27 of that year. After an eventful trip through the State Mr. Clayton returned to St. Louis and in 1821 purchased the well-known Clayton homestead of 700 acres in St. Louis County from John McKnight for $10 an acre. A part of this land is now the town of Clayton, and the county seat of St. Louis County, having been given by Mr. Clayton for that purpose in 1877. Shortly after purchasing the farm, Mr. Clayton established a tannery, which he conducted for thirty-five years. On May 31, 1831, Mr. Clayton married Miss Rosanna McCausland, with whom he lived most happily for thirty-six years, when the union was terminated by the death of Mrs. Clayton. The present commodious brick mansion, in which Mr. Clayton died, was erected in 1848. Mr. Clayton was a devout Methodist, and was diligent during his long life in promoting camp-meetings in St. Louis County. Mr. Clayton was an enthusiastic sportsman, and during his prime he was one of the most unerring riflemen in the West. The funeral took place at four o'clock this afternoon, the services being conducted by Rev. Dr. W. V. Tudor and Father Wesley Browning. It was very largely attended.

Wants a Divorce.

A petition for divorce was filed in the Circuit Clerk's office this morning by Martin & Fauntleroy, the attorneys for Cora Belle Edwards against Daniel Edwards. The parties married in Wright City, Mo., January 23, 1879, and lived together until the 9th of March last. The petition alleges brutal treatment on the part of the defendant's husband. It is alleged that several times between the 24th of November, 1882, and March 9th, 1883, the husband assaulted his wife with his fists, knocking her down and calling her all sorts of vile names at the same time.

THE OLD

TOWN OF WORSTED

IS WHERE IT'S MADE.

THE KING OF DUSTERS!

WORSTED SERGE is a woolen twilled material, the warp of which is "worsted" and the woof woolen—that is, ALL WOOL, only the threads of worsted (so named after the town of Worsted, in Norfolk, England) are made of well-twisted yarn, spun of long staple wool, which has been combed to lay the fibres parallel. For Men's Summer Wear Worsted Serges have become most popular, and deservedly so, for they are far less common, much more dressy and fully as comfortable as Flannel. We have, to be sure, a very desirable and fashionable assortment of SERGE Suits, in dark and cadet blue, brown mixed and three shades of green. Prices from $18 to $25. These suits are made in regular custom style, and fit—"well, now," they fit just beautifully. Come and see if they don't.
